Reprinted with title: The Autobiography of a Criminal, Henry Tufts, edited, with an introduction, by Edmund Pearson. Duffield and Company, New York City—1930.

In the reprint, titles for the chapters have been inserted, and the text cut to the extent of about forty pages, the preface being omitted altogether. In the introduction Pearson says: "As to the actual author of the book, the 'ghost writer,' who is indicated on the title-page, one name and one anonymous person have been suggested. Mr. Wadleigh [in his Notable Events in the History of Dover, 1913] ascribes the writing to Major Thomas Tash of New Durham. A penciled note in the copy of the book, in the New York Public Library, quotes 'David Murray in the News Letter' as saying that it was written 'by—Tash of New Durham.' Miss Thompson [in her Landmarks in Ancient Dover, 1892] rejects the claims of Tash, and suggests 'a clever young lawyer of Dover' . . ."

TUFTS. Introduction to the singing of Psalm-tunes, with a collection of tunes, in three parts. Boston: Printed by B. Green? 1715. 16mo.

Title from Evans.

The above is said to be the first publication of its kind in America. No copy of an issue of this date has been located. Tufts was ordained minister of the second parish in Newbury in June, 1714, and according to Currier's "History of Newbury," 1902, he published a few months later a small book on church music containing twenty-eight psalm tunes, with instruction for singing by note or rule. Currier says that it was regarded by many of the members of the congregation as a daring innovation. Hood's "History of Music in New England," 1846, p. 66, states that the work is supposed to have been published as early as 1712 or 1714, and that he has "the word of a gentleman, who is always correct in dates of olden time, that he has seen a copy of it dated 1714." Metcalf in his "American Writers and Compilers of American Sacred Music," 1925, p. 18, inclines to the belief that the following edition is the first.

[TUFTS]. A very Plain and Easy Introduction to the Art of Singing Psalm Tunes. [Colophon of introduction:] Boston, J. F[ranklin], for S. Gerrish. 1721. Oblong 12mo, pp. 4, 12+.

Caption title. Supplied from the Brinley Catalogue, no. 5885.

Advertised at the end of Thomas Symmes' "Discourse concerning Prejudice in Matters of Religion," 1722, with the additional description: "With the Cantus or Trebles of Twenty eight Psalm Tunes, contrived in such a manner as that the Learner may attain the Skill of Singing them, with the greatest ease and Speed imaginable. By the Rev Mr. John Tufts. Price 6d. or 5s. the doz." In the Brinley copy there were only 16 tunes, but the copy was described as imperfect.

Letters are used on the staff instead of notes, the scheme being described in the introduction.

The Brinley copy had remains of its original marbled wrapper, but editions of Tufts are usually found bound at the end of some of the later editions of the New England version of the Psalms, in contemporary leather binding.

TUFTS. A Collection of thirty-eight Psalm tunes in three parts, treble, medius, and base. In the easy method of singing by letters instead of notes contrived by Rev. Mr. Tufts. Printed from copper plate. Boston: 1723.

Title from Evans. Advertised in the "Boston News-Letter," printed by B. Persons may have Psalm-books with these Tunes bound, for 5 s. 6 d. a piece, Or the Tunes Single for 3 s. a set."

In the issue of the News-Letter for Jan. 28-Feb. 4 of that year is advertised "A Small Singing Book with 18 Psalm Tunes (both Trible and Bass) in the easy Method of Singing by Letters instead of Notes, first contrived by the Reverend Mr. Tufts. . . ." In the issue for Nov. 14-Nov. 21 is advertised "A New Impression of the Small Singing Book, in that most easy Method contrived by the Reverend Mr. Tufts, Containing 36 Psalm Tunes, (the Trebles only) . . . with the addition of Ten Tunes more than in the former small Editions, with some further useful Explanations . . ."

TUFTS. An Introduction to the Singing of Psalm-Tunes, in a plain & easy Method. With a Collection of Tunes in Three Parts. By the Rev. Mr. Tufts. The Fifth Edition. AAS., C., H., HEH., HSP., P., UP., UVT. 97617

According to H. T. Brown's introduction to the 1920 edition, the Contrast was "the first comedy, written by an American, to be performed in an American theatre, by a company of professional actors," when it was given at the John Street Theatre in New York, April 16, 1787. The part of Jonathan, played first by Wignell, is supposed to be in part at least, the original of "Brother Jonathan," the typical Yankee.

Tyler, whose name seldom appeared on the titles of his works, gave the copyright to Wignell.

For an account of the dispute as to the authorship of Maria's song, which appears at the beginning of the second scene, see Brown's introduction cited above. McKee considers that it is probably Tyler's own work. See his edition of the play, p. x.

The edition of the Contrast, with introduction by Thomas J. McKee, was published as no. 1 of the "Publications of the Dunlap Society," New York, 1887, in an edition of 175 copies. Another edition, with a history of George Washington's copy by J. B. Wilbur, and the introduction by Helen Tyler Brown, was published by Houghton Mifflin, Boston, 1920, 275 copies printed.

Reprinted in A. H. Quinn's "Representative American Plays," 1917, pp. 43-77.

ULLOA (Antonio de).

Several of our previous entries of works by this author under Jorge Juan y Santacilia as joint author are misleading. They include some works written by Ulloa exclusively along with those which are by them both as joint authors, or by Juan alone. Though the two were companions on an official expedition to South America, and though the names of both appear as members of the expedition on the titles of the two books published by them on their return, they were independent productions. This is shown by the "Prologo" of Ulloa's work, "Relacion Historica del Viage à la America Meridional," which gives a general account. That by Juan, more technically scientific, had the title, "Observaciones Astronomicas y Physicas Hechas . . . en los Reynos del Peru," our no. 36808, vol. 9. Madrid, 1748. BIB.NAT., C., H., HISP.SOC.AMER., JCB., NYP., UCAL. Madrid, 1773. BIB.NAT., BM., H., JCB., NYP. The secret official report of the expedition, "Noticias Secretas," which was not published contemporaneously, is properly entered under both authors.

UNITED STATES.

It was the intention of Joseph Sabin to enter under "United States" the titles of documents published by the federal government which he considered to have historical importance. Because of the magnitude of the undertaking it has been decided to omit these titles here, and to refer the student to the following sources of bibliographical information.

For issues of the Continental Congress see the Bibliographical Notes appended to various volumes of the "Journals of the Continental Congress," now in process of publication by the Library of Congress, edited in turn by Worthington C. Ford, Gailard Hunt, and John C. Fitzpatrick. In the earlier issues of the Notes, also issued separately, Ford acknowledges his indebtedness to the work of his brother, P. L. Ford, "Some Materials for a Bibliography of the Official Publications of the Continental Congress," first published in the "Bulletin" of the Boston Public Library, and also separately in 1888 and 1890. See also Charles Evans' "American Bibliography," vols. 5-7.

For following periods see also later volumes of Evans and official publications as follows: A. W. Greely's "Public Documents of the First Fourteen Congresses," 1900 (U. S. 56th Cong., 1st sess., Senate doc. no. 428), and its Supplement, 1904, reprinted from Amer. Hist. Assoc. "Annual Report" for 1903, vol. 1, pp. 343-406; B. P. Poore's "Descriptive Catalogue of the Government Publications of the United States," 1885 (U. S. 48th Cong., 2d sess., Senate misc. doc. no. 67); the "Checklist of United States Public Documents, 1789-1909," 3d ed., 1911, and "Tables of and Annotated Index to the Congressional Series of United States Public Documents," 1902, both published by the Superintendent of Documents. For a list of the most important catalogues and indexes covering the period from 1881 on, see I. G. Mudge's "Guide to Reference Books," 5th ed., 1929, pp. 274-278.

It should be noted that many items omitted by Greely are to be found in the larger collections of the documents of the first fourteen congresses, such as those of the American Antiquarian Society, Harvard University, the Library of Congress, and the New York Public Library.

For early United States treaties, see entries under title, etc. and the section "Treaties," which includes important treaties relating to American history beginning with the words "Tractaat," "Tratado," "Traité," etc. as well as with the English words "Treaties" and "Treaty."

We include below, preceding the entries beginning with the words "United States," a few anonymous titles in which those words or their equivalents in other languages, are prominent, and which have not been previously entered under title.

An Abstract of the Public Documents, exhibiting the measures recommended by the administration, and the proceedings in relation to them in Congress, tending to subject the people of the United States to a Military Conscription, to fill the ranks of the regular army; and a Naval Impressment, to supply seamen for the public armed vessels of the United States. Georgetown: Printed by Robert Alleson. 1815. 8vo, pp. 8. UPPER CANADA.

The province of Upper Canada, now Ontario, was separated from Quebec by the Constitutional Act of 1791, which constituted the two provinces of Upper and Lower Canada. In 1841 they were for a time reunited by the Act of Union but in 1867 were again separated, under the British North America Act.

Our entries under this heading include a few of the earliest documents of the province, and some anonymous and corporate entries omitted in the list of titles under Canada, vol. 3, pp. 274-304, as well as those beginning "Upper Canada."

See also W. Kingsford's "Early Bibliography of Upper Canada," 1892.

Titles of works located only at "CAN. ARCH." have been supplied from the "Catalogue of Pamphlets in the Public Archives of Canada," 1931.

We are indebted for descriptions of early official broadsides of Upper Canada to Marie Tremaine of the Toronto Public Library. For fuller information see the forthcoming bibliography of Canadiana to be published by that institution.

The Harvard copy is incomplete.

Kingsford, in his bibliography cited above, states that there is ground for belief that the Statutes were regularly printed year by year from 1792, and quotes the following advertisement from the "Upper Canada Gazette," vol. 3, no. 3, 9th November, 1796: "Just received and ready to be delivered, 'The Laws of the 5th Session,' with a table of contents to the whole volumes complete." Kingsford is in error in stating that the Statutes of 1798 and 1799 are in the Toronto Public Library, according to Marie Tremaine of the department of Canadian bibliography of the institution.

Incomplete. According to a note in the author's "Obras," vol. 1, 1931, p. x, the most complete copy known to Bachiller had only 120 pp. Probably no more of the work was published at this time. The preliminary 38 pp. is the "prólogo" to his Teatro.

The complete work with the hitherto unpublished portions was printed in the author's "Obras," vol. 2, 1931, pp. 75-247. See note on the following title.

URRUTIA Y MONTOYA. Teatro histórico, juridico, y politico-militar, de la Isla Fernandina de Cuba, y principalmente de su Capital La Havana. . . Tomo I. Que comprehende el descubrimiento, Medina in his "Imprenta en la Habana," no. 91, enters this work under 1787, but though the privileges of the book are dated 1786 and 1787, the imprint is without question 1789, and that is the date assigned it in the 1931 edition, edited by Trelles.

Reprinted in 1853 in "Biblioteca de las memorias de la Sociedad económica de Santiago de Cuba." See Trelles' "Ensayo de bibliografía cubana de los siglos xvii y xviii," 1907, p. 52.

This first part of Urrutia's history, the printing of which was interrupted in 1789 at p. 64, was not published in full until it appeared in "Los tres primeros historiadores de . . . Cuba," edited by R. A. Cowley, vol. 2, 1876, pp. 1-476. c., h., NYP.

The complete work, including the final part hitherto unprinted, and together with the Compendio, see above, was published in Havana in 1931, by the Academia de la historia de Cuba, under the title, "Obras." This edition contains reproductions of the original title pages, and an introduction by C. M. Trelles. c., h., NYP.

In the JCB. copy, and in the copy described in Medina's "Imprenta en Mexico," no. 2772, 22 leaves of privileges and index are bound at the end of the book, though the signature marks and catchwords show that they should be placed immediately preceding the text.

Urtassum was the translator of an anonymous work: Interesses de Inglaterra mal entendidos en la guerra presente con España. Palau y Dulcet in his "Manual del librero hispano-americano," vol. 7, p. 89, lists editions of Seville, [1714], and 1741. Medina's "Imprenta en Mexico," no. 3030, gives the following edition: Interesses de Inglaterra mal entendidos en la guerra presente con España. Traducidos de vn Libro Inglés, en lengua Castellana, por el Padre Juan de Urtassum . . . En Mexico: Por Joseph Bernardo de Hoyal. En la Calle de la Monterilla. Año de 1728. 4to, pp. (32), 196. BM.

The earliest version of the work located is a French edition printed at Amsterdam in 1703. BIB. NAT., BM. The catalogue of the Bibliothèque nationale states that it was composed by the Abbé J.-B. Dubos, and it is attributed to him in Nouv. biog. générale. See the catalogue of that library for a number of editions, including an Italian one, Amsterdam, 1704. Though the title in certain editions states that it is taken from an English work, "Englands Interest mistaken en [sic] the present War," we have located no copy of an English edition. The work contains many references to commerce in the West Indies.

"In the spring of 1806 . . . a blasphemous libel . . . was published at Danville, under the title of Useful Discovery . . . When this production appeared, it was thought, that a thing so contemptible . . . could never obtain either credit or currency, and on that account, no notice whatever was taken of it. . . . we have been mistaken, for that edition was sold off, and some time in last spring this worthless pamphlet was again edited in Lexington, though a friendly effort was made to prevent it, by one who wished to avoid a controversy with the Methodist society. Jameson lists among writings of Usselinx not printed by him or in his lifetime, but notes that a copy "in print" is in the Royal Library in Stockholm. Jameson notes also that the "printed copy has no title, and seems to be merely a broadside of 44 lines." Op. cit. p. 100, note 167, also no. 12 of the bibliography, part 1, and no. 20 of part 2. A collection of Dutch pamphlets bearing on the peace with Spain, most of which were not written by Usselinx.

The general title, introduction and a poem form no. 1 of the collection. Asher, nos. 26-28, lists three editions of this no. 1, calling the above the first. C. has a copy of the second and NYP., the third, the title varying slightly in each. In the second and third editions the title begins: Den Nederlandsche Bye-corf . . . See also Stvcken gemencioneert in den Bycorff, below.

Apparently each edition of no. 1 is followed by remainders of various editions of the other pamphlets, arranged differently, and varying numbers of them included. The NYP. copy of the first edition contains 24; C. copy of the second, 41; and NYP. copy of the third, 38 pamphlets.

Tiele's "Bibliotheek van Nederlandsche Pamfletten," vol. 1, nos. 684-686, describes in detail other copies.

Jameson considers only the following, described separately, in our list, to be by Usselinx; although Asher attributed others to him: Bedenckingen, and the other edition under the title, Grondich Discours.—Naerder Bedenckingen.—Vertoogh.

The collection is entered here because of a cross reference.

An edition with the word "Memorie" substituted for the first word of the title was included in the Nederlandschen Bye-Korf, above. NYP. has one copy of this edition reading "In dese tvveede Editie verbeteret" at the end, and two others with "In dese derde Editie verbeteret" at the end. c. also has a copy of the third issue. Tiele's "Bibliotheek van Nederlandsche Pamfletten," nos. 639-640, lists two additional issues which have no mention of edition in the titles.

Although attributed to Usselinx by Asher, it is not credited to him by Jameson, op. cit., p. 36. We enter here because of a cross reference.

Reprints of many of the writings of Usselinx are included in J. Marquard's "Tractatus politico-juridicus," 1662. c., n., NYP. The entry in our no. 44661, vol. 11, is taken from the engraved title. For a better title, see Jameson, no. 27.

UZTARIZ (Geronimo de). Theorica y practica de Comercio y Marina. Madrid. 1724. Folio, leaves 14-18, pp. 560. 98249

Title from Palau y Dulcet's "Manual del librero hispano-americano," vol. 7, p. 90. Many of the chapters relate to America.

According to the dedication in the English edition of 1751, "This valuable treatise was first printed in the year 1724 . . . but it was then apprehended by the court of Madrid not to be a proper season to make it publick. The printed copies were accordingly destroyed, while the author was caressed, rewarded, and loaded with honours; and in the year 1742, the work was ordered to be reprinted, under the care of the marquis de Uztariz, son of Don Antonio, who died in this interval."

An extract from this work was published with Bernardo de Ulloa's "Restablecimiento de las fabricas y comercio español," 1740.

Harrisse's Additions, no. 170, a copy located in the library of Ste. Geneviève in Paris.

The group of 14 unnumbered and 2 blank leaves (a-d in fours) contains woodcut maps, and representations of the armillary sphere and celestial planisphere, which were printed from the blocks first used for the 1546 Froschover edition of Honter's "Rudimenta Cosmographica," and which were also used in the later Froschover editions of the latter work, including that of 1548. The world map is dated Tiguri, 1546.

In the JCB. copy this little atlas precedes the index (Aa in four, the last blank) instead of following it as in the NYP. copy. The latter copy lacks the sixth and seventh leaves of the atlas, ba-bs. In the c. copy the index is bound at the end.

Oz is incorrectly marked N2.

The title page is engraved.

In addition to the plates given above in the collation there are 14 illustrations in the text, some of them full page.

The plates and illustrations were drawn and engraved by the author. Some of them represent in their backgrounds Mexican scenes with which the artist was familiar.

That there were two or more issues is shown by the plates. The NYP. copy has 8 plates on 7 leaves. In the H. and JCB. copies the plate with the heading "Hierarchia Ecclesiastica" has on its verso another symbolical engraving with the word "Meritorium" enscribed in one of the blank spaces. In the NYP. copy the verso is blank.

The allegorical engraving, which in the list of plates on the last printed page is called "figura Matrimonij & Mechorum," in the JCB. copy is on the verso of the leaf, and in the H. copy on the recto, both copies having on the back another symbolical engraving with a scroll at the top and the inscription "Ego sum Alpha et O . . ." The recto of the "figura Matrimonij & Mechorum" in the NYP. copy is blank. The leaf, which together with this forms a signature, in the H. and JCB. copies is another plate, with inscription beginning "Vulnificum fuso . . .," while in the NYP. copy it is blank.

Medina's Bib. hisp. amer., no. 259, describes two variant issues of the folded table. In one there is a vignette in the lower left corner. In the other there is the following imprint in this corner: Perusia, Apud Petrum iacobum Petrutium. M D LXXIX Permisso Superiorum. F. Didaco Valades. Fratrum Minorum regularis obseruantiae Auctore. The H., JCB., and NYP. copies have the vignette.

For a list of chapters relating to America and the American Indians, see Medina.

Graesse's "Trésor de livres rares et précieux," vol. 6, 1867, p. 235, notes a second edition with additions, printed in 1583. Appleton mentions a Rome, 1587, edition.

VAN DAM (Rip). The | Arguments | of the | Council for the Defendant, | In Support of | A Plea to the Jurisdiction, | Pleaded to a Bill filed in a Course of Equity, | At the Suit of | The Attorney General, Complainant, | Against | Rip Van Dam, Defendant, | In the | Supream Court of | New-York. | [Ornament.] | New-York: Printed by John Peter Zenger, M,DCC,XXXIII. | Folio, pp. (2), 51. A-N in twos, besides title. NYP., PUB.REC.OFF. 98429

Pages 1-4 contain the introductory remarks signed by Rip Van Dam; followed on pp. 5-48 by the Argument for Defendant, presumably delivered by William Smith, "as well in the Name of my fellow Council [James Alexander] as of my self;" although neither the name of Smith nor Alexander appears in any part of the book. The heading on page 5 begins, "New-York, Supream Court, in the Equity Side of the Exchequer," and the Argument ends on page 48, "Fiat Justitia si ruat Cælum, New-York, March 15, 1732-3." The work also gives the minutes of the adjourned sittings of the Court of the Exchequer, February 1, 1732-3; and of the Supreme Court sittings, March 20th, and April 9th, 1733; and also a "further Exception" of Van Dam to the right of the Justices to judge in the suit. This "Exception" had been brought before the sitting of April 9th, but action on it was deferred. At the foot of page 51 are five lines of errata.

William Smith and James Alexander were counsel for the defendant. The suit was brought at the instance of Governor Cosby, and demanded the refund of half the salary and perquisites which Van Dam had received while acting as governor in the interval between Montgomerie's death and the arrival of Cosby. The provincial council had voted him the full salary for the time, but a royal order brought by Cosby required that all the receipts be divided with him, and the council ordered Van Dam to make the return. He refused, so the suit was brought, not in chancery, in which case the governor would have been one of the judges, but in the Court of the Exchequer. Cosby moreover was afraid to bring it in a court of law when a jury would decide, so that he brought it in equity, i.e., before the judges of the Supreme Court sitting on the equity side of the exchequer. Smith and Alexander argued that as there was no statutory basis for such a court it was illegal. See Osgood's "American Colonies in the Eighteenth Century," 1924, vol. 2, pp. 446-451, for an account of the whole controversy.

This was the first of five publications by Rip Van Dam, relating to his case, issued with continuous pagination and sheet marks. The others follow:

VAN DAM. The Proceedings of Rip Van Dam, Esq; in order | for obtaining Equal Justice of His Excellency | William Cosby, Esq; | [Colophon:] New York: Printed and Sold by John Peter Zenger, where also | is to be sold, The Argument of Van Dam's Council in Support of | his Plea to the Jurisdiction of the Supream Court of New-York. | MDCCXXXIII. | Folio, pp. 53-63. Sheets O, P, and Q in twos. NYH., NYP. 98430

Although from the pagination it would appear that the "Arguments" were published first, there must have been some delay in their printing, judging from the following statement on page 54: "As the Wellbeing of the People of this Province, and their Posterity, is much concerned in the Consequences of that Opinion on my Demurrer, I think it my Duty, for their Sakes as well as mine own, to publish it at large, with the Arguments that preceded it . . . But as the Press here is so weak-handed and slow, it will be a Work of some Time, before that Argument and Opinion can be printed, which makes me chuse the publishing these short Proceedings first," etc.

VAN DAM. Farther proceedings concerning the Case of Rip | Van Dam, Esqr. at the Suit of the Attorney | General being for the Use of his Excellency | Coll. Cosby Governour of this Province, in | the Equity Side of the Exchequer. | [New York: Printed by John Peter Zenger. 1734.] Folio, pp. 65-68, misnumbered 80. Sheet R in two. NYP. 98431

any Way concern; | Rip Van Dam sendeth greeting. | Whereas
On the Death of the late Governour Montgomerie the Ad- | ministration of the Government of this Province of New-York did |
devolve on him the said Rip Van Dam, and was accordingly |
administred, for the Space of thirteen Months, till the Arri- | val of . . . the late Governour Cosby, whom it hath pleased God to remove by Death, on the Tenth Instant. And Whereas He . . .
hath been advised by Council . . . that the Administration . . . did devolve on him . . . Therefore he the said Rip Van Dam did take the Measures in Order thereto, contained in the following Protest.
. . . [New York: Printed by John Peter Zenger. 1736.] Folio, pp. 69-73. Sheet S in three.

NYP. 98433

The protest is signed at the end by Rip Van Dam, and sworn to before S. Johnson in the presence of Robert Livingston, P. V. B. Livingston, and Matthew Van Alstyn, on the 11th Day of March, 1735-6. It is probable that the printer had forgotten that he had already printed another set of pp. 69-71 in the preceding title, and expected the protest with the sheet mark S to follow immediately after the "Farther Proceedings" which had the sheet mark R.

Advertised in the "New-York Weekly Journal" for March 29, 1736.

VAN DAM. Copy of a Letter from Rip Van Dam, Esq; to the several Members of that General Assembly of New-York, that

In the NYP. copy pp. 1 and 4 are misnumbered 11 and 13, respectively, but a photo-static reproduction in NYP. made from a copy owned by Robert Fridenberg in March, 1923, shows the pages in that copy to be correctly numbered. The Fridenberg copy has ms. notes by George Clarke in the margins.

VANDELEUR CAPTIVITY.

The fictitious account which includes the narrative of the Indian captivity of John Vandeleur, Vandelure, Vandeluer, or Van Delure, passed through many editions under varying titles. In most cases these bear the pseudonym of Alonso Decalves, two titles under that pseudonym being entered as our nos. 19129-19130, vol. 5. In others, Vandeleur, himself, is given as the author. The narrative is also included in the "Narrative of a Voyage . . . from Amsterdam to China and from there to . . . North America," which purports to have been written by James Van Leason, or Vanleason.

The following list of editions is arranged chronologically, and under each year, alphabetically by title.

AAS., CU., H., NYS., Y. 98479

A ms. note of Wilberforce Eames laid in the H. copy states that the inscription, on the title page of that copy, "By Fr. Adr. Van der Kemp," is apparently written in the hand of Van der Kemp as found in the autograph ms. of his Funeral Oration on Washington. Also attributed to Van der Kemp in the bibliography appended to his autobiography, p. 214.

According to Van Doorninck's "Vermomde en naamlose shrijvers . . . der Nederlandsche en Vlaamsche letteren," vol. 2, 1885, p. 122, Van der Kemp was probably the translator of the Dutch version of Crèvecoeur's "Letters from an American Farmer," with title, "Brieven van eenen Amerikaenschen landman," Leyden, 1784, our no. 17498, vol. 5. For a note on this point, see Rice's "Le cultivateur américain," Paris, 1933, p. 69, where the attribution is considered plausible, in spite of the fact that the work is not included in the list of Van der Kemp's writings at the end of his Autobiography. Rice also notes that Van der Kemp was the translator of our no. 97252, vol. 25.

It has been suggested that Bandiera or Vandiera was the real author of J. P. Fernandez' "Relacion Historical de las Misiones de los Indios," 1726, see our nos. 24135-24138, vol. 6. Sommervogel's edition of de Backer calls attention to the claim made by Father Muriel, in his notes on his Latin translation of Charlevoix, that Bandiera wrote the work in Italian and gave it for translation to Pedro Lozano.

The above tract setting forth Sir Henry Vane's political theories has American interest because of the influence of his stay in America upon those theories, and because he foreshadows the written constitutions of this country and its states. He advocates the calling of a "Convention of faithfull, honest, and discerning men . . . not properly to exercise the Legislative Power, but only to debate freely, and agree upon the particulars, that by way of Fundamentall Constitutions shall be laid and inviolably observed . . ."

"Written by a Sectarist in favour of Vane, and printed by stealth."—Lowndes.

In general the religious works and printed speeches of Sir Henry Vane have little direct connection with his life in Massachusetts. In the Hutchinson "Collection of Original Papers relative to the History of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay," 1769, pp. 71-83, was printed his "A briefe Answer to a certaine declaration, made of the intent and equitye of the order of court, that none should be received to inhabite within this jurisdiction but such as should be allowed by some of the magistrates." This was written in reply to Winthrop's "A Defence of an Order of Court made in the Year 1637," which together with his reply to Vane was also printed in the Collection. The latter, including these three items, was reprinted in the "Hutchinson Papers" published by the Prince Society in 1865.

For other works of Vane see the British Museum Catalogue, and the list appended by C. H. Firth to the life in Dict. Nat. Biog.

The first leaf is wrongly marked A₂, but the sheet is complete in four leaves. The NYP. copy is in the original bluish gray paper covers.

The HEH. copy of the charter is preceded by two leaves, both octavo broadsides issued

The American interest does not lie in the narrative of Varthema, but in the account of Grijalva's expedition to Yucatan in 1518, which was written by his chaplain, Juan Diaz, and which does not appear in earlier editions of Varthema's work. No contemporary Spanish version has been located. This account begins on the verso of leaf M₁ and is continued to the verso of N₄ and has the title: Itinerario de larmata del | Re catholico in India uerso | la Isola de Iuchathan del an | no. M.D.XVIII. allaqual su | presidēte & Capitan Gene- | ral Ioan de Grisalua elqual | e facto per el Capellano | maggior de dicta armata a | sua alteza. |

For fuller information see HARRISSE no. 98, and the JCB. catalogue, vol. 1, 1875, no. 65.

The type in the colophon is somewhat crooked.

Harrisse no. 98 lists this edition under 1520, but Fumagalli's "Bibliografia degli scritti italiani o stampati in Italia sopra Cristoforo Colombo," 1893, no. 695, refers to Cicogna's "Saggio di bibliografia veneziana" as showing that Pagan printed in Venice during the period 1554–1569.

This undated edition follows closely the 1535 edition.

A French translation of the account of Yucatan forms pp. 1–47, in Ternaux-Compans' "Recueil de pièces relatives à . . . Mexique," 1838, vol. 10 of his "Voyages, Relations et Mémoires."

A Spanish translation appears in García Icazbalceta's "Coleccion," vol. 1, 1858, pp. 281–308.

Translated from the Dutch by William Phillip.

The first printed account of these voyages was published in Amsterdam in 1598, with title: "Waerachtige Beschryvinghe van drie seylagien . . ." There were several later editions and a number of translations. For a bibliography of de Veer's account of these voyages, see the reprint of the English version published by the Hakluyt Society in 1876, pp. clvi-clxxiv. See also the edition, "Reizen van Willem Barents, Jacob van Heemskerck, Jan Cornelisz. Rijp en anderen . . . (1594-1597)," 1917, (vols. 14-15 of "Werken uitgegeven door de Linschoten-Vereeniging") vol. 2, pp. 267-282.

The English edition given above is included because of a cross reference. We enter below editions which contain an account of Henry Hudson's 1609 voyage to the northeast.

The rubricated titles for these issues vary slightly from those printed in black only. As some copies have only the black titles, and some only the rubricated ones, while others have both, it seems possible that all the issues were originally printed with two titles. The AAS. issue printed for Richard Tonson has the title page in black, while that at NYH. has the rubricated one. Possibly in this case each lacks one of the titles.

The AAS. copy lacks two of the plates but the collation should evidently correspond with the other copies.

Pp. 413-414 are blank.

Title from Medina's Bib. hisp.-amer., no. 2166. Note from a clipping from an unidentified bookseller's catalogue.

The author of the note, evidently in error, identified the uncle referred to in the title as the author of "Norte de la Contratacion," though the name of the latter was José and he had died in 1688. Medina's Bib. hisp.-amer., vol. 3, p. 199, quotes a letter from the viceroy of Mexico, recommending Juan Joseph de Veitia Linaje, who may be the uncle referred to in the above title. The letter cannot refer to the author of "Norte de la Contratacion," since it is dated December 31, 1692, which was after his death.

VELASQUEZ (Pedro). Memoir of an Eventful Expedition in Central America; resulting in the discovery of the idolatrous city of Iximaya, in an unexplored region; and the possession of two remarkable Aztec Children, Descendants and Specimens of the Sacerdotal Caste, (now nearly extinct,) of the Ancient Aztec Founders of the Ruined Temples of that Country, described by John L. Stevens, Esq., and other travellers. Translated from the Spanish of Pedro Velasquez, of San Salvador. New York: Printed by J. W. Bell, 178 Fulton Street. 1850. 8vo, pp. 35. AAS., C., c., NYP., UCAL. + New York, Printed by J. W. Bell, 1850

 [1851]. 8vo, pp. vi, 3-35. c., H. 98812

The Spanish original of the above and its author are myths. The chief interest lies in its connection with the history of the American circus, having been published to advertise the exhibition of the supposed "Aztec" children. A ms. note of E. G. S[quier] filed with Joseph Sabin's memoranda states that the children were born in the town of Usulután, or Usulután, south west of San Miguel, of mixed Indian, Spanish, and negro stock.

Frequently reprinted in connection with exhibitions in the United States and in England, with the title "Illustrated Memoir . . ." A French translation went through two editions, copies of both in AAS. and c.

The above title, of a later period than that now covered in this Dictionary, is included because of a cross reference.

There were many other issues printed from 1526 to 1641. See Medina's Bib. hisp. amer., vol. 1, p. 237, and Palau y Dulcet's "Manual del librero hispano-americano," under the author's name. Medina notes that an edition printed at Burgos in 1551 contains American references. Other issues examined by Harris or Medina which are said not to contain these references are those of Burgos, 1526, Alcala, 1540, Salamanca, 1545, and Amberes, 1551. Running title: Additiones constitutionum nouæ impressionis.

The introductory letter following the above caption on p. 1, is dated: "Mexici Kalendis Nouembris. Anno. 1559." See García Icazbalceta's "Bibliographia mexicana del siglo XVI," no. 37, for a note in which he suggests that the type used is that of Juan Pablos.

These "additiones" are evidently supplementary to the "Constitutiones Fratrum Haeremitarum" printed in 1556, probably by Pablos. The compilation of the "Constitutiones" was attributed to Veracruz by HARRISSE, in his "Introduccion de la imprenta en América," 1872, pp. 31-32. Our note following the entry under "Regvla beatissimi . . . Augustini," no. 68936, vol. 16, describes copies of the "Constitutiones" as usually without title pages. Medina, however, refers to the Ramirez Catalogue, no. 724, for the description of a copy with a title. See his "Imprenta en Mexico," no. 25. See also our no. 57519. vol. 14.

BM., C., H., HEH., JCB., NEWBERRY, NYP. 98923

The work of Verardus is a drama based on Ferdinand's capture of Granada from the Moors. The American interest lies in the appended Columbus letter found on the last seven and a half leaves, beginning on the verso of leaf [29], as follows: De Insulis nuper in | mari Indico repertis | [Woodcut inscribed "Insula hyspana"]. At head of leaf [30]: De Insulis nuper inuentis | Epistola Christoferi Colom (cui etas nostra mul- | tum debet: de Insulis . . . | . . .) ad Magnificū dominū Raphae- | lem Sanxis . . . | . . . tercio Kalendas Maii. M.cccc.xcii]. . . | . . .

The five woodcuts in the text are the same as those in the [Basel, 1493] edition of the Columbus letter, our no. 14629, vol. 4, which, according to the "Catalogue of Books printed in the XVth Century now in the British Museum," vol. 3, p. 777, was printed by Jacobus Wolff de Pforzheim. The portrait of Ferdinand on the Verardus title differs in many respects from a portrait of the same on the recto of the tenth leaf in Pforzheim's edition.

Facsimiles of the title page and the caption on recto of leaf [30] may be found in the Church catalogue, no. 8.

VERMONT.

The works entered below are divided into three groups.

1. Chronological arrangement of titles relating to the New Hampshire Grants.
2. Public Documents of the State, 1777-1800.
3. Miscellaneous Publications, through 1840.

The compilation of the Vermont titles has been simplified by the work of two collectors of Vermont material, Matt B. Jones, and the late James B. Wilbur. Most of the Jones collection is now at the library of the American Antiquarian Society in Worcester, while the Wilbur collection has become the Wilbur Library of the University of Vermont in Burlington.

NEW HAMPSHIRE GRANTS.

The boundary controversies between New York, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire, in regard to the region now the state of Vermont, and the difficulties between the settlers on these "New Hampshire Grants" and the states of New York and New Hampshire in particular, led to the publication of a number of tracts and broadsides. Some of these were official in character, others were anonymous, and still others, though bearing the names of given authors, such as Ira and Ethan Allen or Stephen R. Bradley, may be shown to have had official backing. As an introduction to our list of the early public documents of the state, we include here a chronological arrangement of a few new titles, and also of cross references to previously entered titles, relating to these disputes. As many documents of importance in this connection were not printed contemporaneously, a few notes as to later printings of source material on the Grants precede our list of separately printed items.

A number of documents relating to the conventions of the inhabitants of the New Hampshire Grants were printed for the first time in Slade's "Vermont State Papers," 1823. Additional papers appeared in "Conventions of the Inhabitants of the New Hampshire Grants in opposition to the Claims of New York," 1765-1777, printed in Vt. Hist. Soc. "Collections," vol. 1, 1870, pp. 1-66. H. B. Dawson included what he claimed to be a more accurate and complete printing of the same, from different manuscripts, in the "Historical Magazine" from Jan. 1872 to Aug. 1873, vols. 21-22. See also the following:

Records of Conventions in the New Hampshire Grants for the Independence of Vermont, 1776-1777. Reproduced in facsimile from manuscripts in the Library of Congress, written and attested by Jonas Fay, clerk of the conventions, with other documents and an explanatory statement. Arranged and presented by Redfield Proctor. Washington, D. C., 1904. Proctor considers Dawson's criticism of the printing of the records in the "Collections" as unduly severe.

"General Conventions in the New Hampshire Grants, for the independence, organization, and defense of the State of Vermont. July 1775-December 1777," comprise the first 79 pages of Rec. of Council of Safety and Gov. and Council of Vermont, vol. 1, and in vols. 1-3, and 5 of that compilation, 1873-1877, are included other documents and source material also relating to the controversies, printed for the first time or reprinted. See also "The Controversy between New Hampshire, New York, and Vermont, relating to the 'New Hampshire Grants' (so called) from 1749 to 1791," in N. H. Provincial and State Papers, vol. 10, 1877, pp. 197-500; "Collection of Evidence in vindication of the Territorial Rights and Jurisdiction of the State of New York," and "Territorial Rights of New York; the N. H. Grants, etc." in N. Y. Hist. Soc. "Collections" for the years 1869 and 1870, Pub. Fund Ser., vol. 2, 1870, pp. 277-528, and vol. 3, 1871, pp. (4), 1-144; and O'Callaghan's Doc. Hist. of N. Y., vol. 4, 1851, pp. 529-1034.

The "New Hampshire Grants being Transcripts of the Charters of Townships and Minor Grants of Lands . . . within the Present Boundaries of the State of Vermont," are printed in vol. 26, 1895, of N. H. State Papers.

Some Reflections on the Disputes between New-York, New-Hampshire, and Col. John Henry Lydius. 1764. See [Young (Thomas)].

A Petition to His Majesty King George the Third. [1766.] See no. 61280, vol. 14. H., JCB., VTSL.

Probably printed in Hartford by Thomas Green as were other early Vermont items. A. C. Bates notes that the type ornaments are the same as those used by Green. See "Bibliographical Essays, a Tribute to Wilberforce Eames," 1924, p. 354.

A volume in the State Library contains eighteen of these petitions and fifteen powers of attorney, with ms. signatures attached to the copies of both documents, beginning at the end of the printing and continuing on the following blank pages. The volume does not contain in all cases both a petition and a power of attorney for each group of signatures, evidently some copies of each having become separated, as in the case of the H. copy which is without the power of attorney and is unsigned. The Brinley-Goelet copy, now JCB., has the power of attorney. The text of the latter is as follows:

We the Subscribers Proprietors and Claimants in and of sundry Townships, lately granted by Governor Wentworth, in the Western Parts of the then supposed Province of New-Hampshire, do hereby fully impower Our trusty Friends and fellow Partners in those Interests, Samuel Robinson, Esq; [and eighteen others] for Us and in Our Behalf and Stead, to take and pursue all and every needful and proper Measure and Step, by Application to His Majesty or otherwise, to obtain a full Confirmation to Us of said Lands, on such reasonable Terms as may be; hereby granting to them and to any and every three or more of them, full Powers of Substitution. Witness our Hands, in New-England, November, 1766.

The petition and power of attorney were reprinted in Vt. Hist. Soc. "Collections," vol. 1, 1870, pp. 271-288, together with the signatures appended to the copies in the volume in the State Library. Another reprint appears in N. H. State Papers, vol. 26, 1895, pp. 589-609.

Folio, pp. 17.

C., UVT. (WILBUR), VTSL. 98998

Although in the pamphlet itself, on pp. [3] and 5, spaces are left for filling in the place and date of meeting respectively, according to notes in Rec. of Gov. and Council of Vt., vol. 2, 1874, pp. 489-491, the convention must be that held at Manchester, Jan. 31, 1775. In the Wilbur copy this place and date had been supplied in ms. "The document is not a journal of all the proceedings of the Convention, but a proclamation to the public of very important resolutions and orders, which for a time had all the force of laws with the people of western Vermont. Probably Ethan Allen was its author."

There are a few slight errors in punctuation, etc. in our entry.

The official character of the above is shown by the fact that Ira Allen, in his account book as treasurer of the state, included a charge for going to Hartford to see to the printing of it. See Thompson's "History of Vermont," 1842, pt. 2, p. 107.

A charge to the state for "assisting to revise Vt. Appeal wrote by S. R. Bradley Esq. &c." appears in Ira Allen's accounts. See Thompson's "History of Vermont," 1842, pt. 2, p. 107. The suggestion made by the late J. B. Wilbur, in his "Ira Allen," vol. 1, 1928, p. 146, that Allen should be regarded as the real author of the tract is hardly tenable. M. B. Jones notes that a manuscript draft of the "Appeal" was formerly in the library of the Vermont Historical Society. It was written in the hand of Stephen R. Bradley, and contained only a few minor changes interlined in the hand of Ira Allen. The draft can no longer be located and was probably among the mss. destroyed by the flood of 1927.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

Our entries under this heading include in one list official publications of the state as an independent republic, 1777-1791, and as one of the United States from 1791-1800. The arrangement is alphabetical under the official or body responsible. Exceptions are the titles entered under "Constitution," and "Laws, Statutes, etc."

Other items on the same bill of which no copies have been located are "Handbills," "Journals of Assembly," "Notes," "[Fast Day] Proclamations," "Letters," and "Schemes of a Lottery," as well as the lottery tickets.

Wilbur, in his introduction to the first part of the "Journals and Proceedings," printed in vol. 3 of the "State Papers of Vermont," 1924. p. v, gives it as his opinion that the charge was made for printing the proceedings of October 21, 1778, when the New Hampshire members of the Assembly were voted "out" and withdrew from the House. He also notes that the Assembly voted October 21, 1778, to have the proceedings of that day printed.

Evans describes the proclamation as having a colophon, and locates a copy at HSP. only. J. P. Boyd states that that copy, like others examined, is without a colophon.

Usually when found it is bound with the first code of laws of the state, the "Acts and Laws," [Dresden], 1779. Chief Justice George M. Powers of Vermont states that in his copy of the code, the proclamation clearly forms part of the last signature.

LAWS, STATUTES, ETC.

The following list of the laws of Vermont for the years 1779-1800 is arranged chronologically. The order of printing is taken as far as possible from the list of the laws for the years 1779-1791, prepared by Wilberforce Eames and J. B. Wilbur, which is printed in "Bibliographical Essays, a tribute to Wilberforce Eames," 1924, p. 280. We are also indebted to Dr. Eames for information as to printers' charges filed with AAS. copies of the laws.

Slade stated in his "Vermont State Papers," 1823, p. 287, that the laws for the [March, June, and October] sessions of 1778 were published in pamphlet form toward the close of that year. Their preparation for the press was ordered at the close of the October session, but no copy has ever been located, and it is probable, that since they were superseded by the code adopted in 1779, they were never printed. See Wilbur's article in the Eames volume, Rugg's "The Dresden Press," in "Dartmouth Alumni Magazine," vol. 12, 1920, p. 802, and the historical note prefixed to the Public Laws of Vermont adopted in 1933.

Many of the laws from the year 1779 to 1786, inclusive, were reprinted in Slade's "Vermont State Papers," pp. 287-510, including also some not previously printed.

It should be noted that, with the exception of the photo-facsimile reproductions issued by the Statute Law Book Company, the various separate reprints of early Vermont laws mentioned in our notes are not exact facsimiles. Their appearance is misleading. The headings are not always lined off as in the originals, and moreover, in some cases the reprints are made up of items not originally published together.

Acts and Laws of the State of Vermont, in America. [Dresden:] Printed by Judah-Paddock & Alden Spooner, Printers to the General Assembly of said State. 1779. Folio, pp. (2), Constitution 12, table of contents (2), laws 110, proclamation (1).

AAS., C., H.(LAW), HEH., HSP., M., NYBA., NYP., UVT.,

UVT.(WILBUR), VTSL. 99075

The first code of laws of the state adopted by the General Assembly in its session of February, 1779.

The signatures of the laws are separate from those of the title page and constitution, and there seem to be differences in the paper used, while the table of contents is a single leaf.

The leaf at the end is a proclamation of Governor Chittenden calling the attention of the inhabitants of the state to the promulgation of the code. When found this is usually issued with the laws, and may not have been published separately. Chief Justice George M. Powers of Vermont states that his copy of the proclamation is the second leaf of signature Ee of the "Acts and Laws," there being no doubt in the case of this copy.

Most of the located copies are imperfect lacking either the title or the proclamation leaf. The Powers copy is complete. Good copies are at C. and HEN. One of the State Library copies has the two leaves, but is not in perfect condition.

Together with the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, with its Amendments, and the Constitution of the State of Vermont: With an Appendix: containing the several Laws, which have heretofore been passed by the Legislature, regulating Proprietors' Meetings, granting General Land Taxes, exclusive privileges to Companies for Locks, Toll Bridges, Turnpike Roads, &c. and the Titles of all the Acts which have not been repealed, or become obsolete. Some copies of this revision were issued in two volumes, probably for greater convenience in handling. A title page as above is found in the first volume, pp. [1]-406. A new title page from a different setting of type, and with slight variations in punctuation, alignment, etc., was used for the second volume, pp. (2), 407-621, 205, (2). Copies of both the one volume and two volume issues are at HEH., and the second volume of the second issue at AAS., as well as the complete first issue.

Several copies have also been found in which Spooner's supplement to the above revision, issued in 1801, no. 99131, below, has been substituted for the appendix. A 12 page index to the revised Laws has been added. AAS., BM., CU.(LAW), VTSL. (2 copies).

M. B. Jones notes that the above was apparently an unauthorized collection of laws passed from 1797-1800, with a few acts of 1801 added, issued as supplementary to the Revision of 1797.

Some copies include an index to the revised Laws of 1797, pp. 12, and are bound with copies of that revision, no. 99126, above, as a substitute for its appendix.

COMPILATIONS AND REVISIONS.

The first code of laws of Vermont, and the earliest revisions and compilations of the session laws and statutes are included in the preceding chronological list as follows: the "Acts and Laws" of 1779; the "Revised Laws" of 1782, printed in 1783, with later continuations; the "Statutes" of 1787 printed in that year, and, with a continuation, in 1791; the "Laws" of 1797, printed in 1798; and the "Acts and Laws," 1797-1800, with a few acts of 1801, printed by Spooner in 1801.

For an account of later compilations, including those prepared by Tolman (2 vols., Randolph, 1808, with an apparently unofficial continuation published by Fay, Davison and Burt, at Rutland in 1817), Slade (Windsor, 1825), D. P. Thompson (Montpelier, 1835), and others, down to the present, see the historical note prefixed to the "Public Laws of Vermont," of 1933, printed in 1934.

ALMANACS.

Instead of entering here in detail the various almanacs printed in, or calculated for, the state of Vermont, we refer to C. L. Nichols' "Checklist of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont Almanacs" printed in Am. Antiq. Soc. "Proceedings" for April 1928, and also issued separately. See also Gilman's "Bibliography of Vermont," Spargo's "Anthony Haswell," and Evans' "American Bibliography." The first distinctive almanac for the state noted by Nichols, but not located by him or by Evans, was "The Vermont Almanack" for 1784 by "Ned Foresight," printed in Albany. A copy has been found listed in the Vermont State Library catalogue.

Title and note supplied from Gilman, who describes the report of the preceding year as a "broadsheet" addressed "To the Churches and Congregations of Vermont," and containing "proceedings and address of the General Convention of Congregational and Presbyterian ministers, assembled at Middlebury, September 1, 1807, relative to the Vermont Missionary Society which was formally organized at said convention. . . ." Gilman notes that the reports, with varying titles, continued annually to and including the year 1818, when the organization was succeeded by the Vermont Juvenile Missionary Society, see above.

Gilman also describes a broadside "Communication of the Vermont Missionary Society. A Circular Letter to the Churches and Congregations in the Western Districts of the state of Vermont," which is a committee report submitted October 10, 1805.

Vermonters Unmasked, or some of their evil Conduct made manifest, from Facts too glaring to be denied, and many of them too criminal to be justified, as follows, viz. [Poughkeepsie. Printed by John Holt. 1782.] 8vo, pp. 12. UVT. (WILBUR). 99240

Caption title.

Signed and dated: A Citizen of the United States. 10th June, 1782.

The author was Charles Phelps, the above being an improved entry of our no. 61368, vol. 14, which see for reference to Hall's "History of Eastern Vermont." For further information, see pp. 37-38 of the following work: Family Memoirs, written at Patapsco, Maryland, about two years before his Death in 1849, by John Phelps. Brattleboro: Selleck & Davis, Book and Job Printers, 1886. 8vo, pp. 68. UVT. (WILBUR). Of interest in connection with the controversies to which "Vermonters Unmasked" relates is the attack on Phelps in "A Copy of a Remonstrance, of the Council of the State of Vermont," 1783, p. 20. See no. 99073, above.

The printer has been identified by M. B. Jones as John Holt, who moved his press from New York to Poughkeepsie during the revolution. After a careful search it was found that the type ornament above the caption title in this tract was used in three works printed by John Holt or his widow in 1782 and 1783. Mr. Jones notes no further instance of its use. It is known that Phelps was in Poughkeepsie toward the end of September of 1782, on his way to Philadelphia, as agent of citizens of Cumberland County, whose sympathies were with New York in the controversy over the New Hampshire Grants. He was to lay their views before Congress.

NYP. 99249

There were two issues of the edition printed for W. Webb, from different settings of type. On the title of one the word "Wellwisher" is spelled "Well-wisher," there is a different ornament, and a variation in punctuation.

A comparison between the HEH. copy of one of the issues printed for Webb and the issue without a bookseller's name, in the same library, shows that except for the title pages and half titles, they are from the same setting of type.

London editions are located also at BM. and WLC.

Like the preceding title, the Specimen contained extracts from Vernon's correspondence with the Admiralty. See D. Ford's "Admiral Vernon and the Navy," [1907], pp. 258-265, and 305-307.

Verplanck were the authors of this work. In a letter by J. Verplanck to M. Van Buren, dated Dec. 25, 1819 (preserved in the Library of Congress, Manuscript division) it is stated that John Duer wrote the first poem called 'The state triumvirate,' and G. C. Briefs-wijse door den Ontdekker opgesteld, en aan zijn Koninklijke Majesteyt gesonden. . . . Voor-af gaat een Kort Voor-berigt van de Scheeps-togten en Volk-plantingen der Franssen, in het Noordergedeelte van America, te weeten in Florida en Canada;

de eerste in het jaar 1524. en soo vervolgens. Nu alder-eerst uyt het Frans vertaald. Met noodig Register en Konst-Print verrijkt. Te Leyden, By Pieter Vander Aa, Boekverkooper, 1706. Met Privilegie. 8vo, pp. (2), 31, index (4). Folded plate. B., BM., C., H., NYH., NYP. + [Same imprint.] [1706?] Folio, 6 unnumbered leaves. B., BM., C., H., NYP. 99281

The octavo edition is included in Pieter vander Aa's "Naaukeurige Versameling der gedenk-waardigste Zee en Land-Reysen," vol. 10, 1707. The folio edition is included in vol. 1 of his "De Aanmerkens-waardige Voyagien door Francoisen, Italiaanen, Deenen, Hoogduytsen en andere Vreemde Volkeren." The latter is one of the four parts of a rearrangement of the "Naaukeurige Versameling," grouped by nationality, printed in 1706 and 1707, each part in two volumes. There is a reissue of the four parts with a general title dated 1727.

The folio edition was reprinted from the octavo, two columns to a page, the columns numbered 1-18, beside the title leaf and the index on the verso of the last leaf. The plate in the octavo edition is included as an illustration in the text in the folio.

Verrazzano's letter to King Francis I., a Dutch translation of which forms pp. 13-31, was first printed in Italian in Ramusio's "Navigationi," vol. 3, 1556, leaves 420-422. Hakluyt printed an English translation of this text in his "Divers Voyages," A1-E1 of the second group of signatures, 17 unnumbered leaves; he also included it in the second edition of his "Principall Navigations," vol. 3, 1600, pp. 295-300. Versions of the letter derived from Ramusio are found in many collections of voyages.

Another text of the letter is found in a ms. preserved in the Biblioteca nazionale in Florence, and which was previously in the possession of the Strozzi family, and later in the Magliabecchiana library. This text contained Verrazzano's cosmographical appendix not printed by Ramusio. The version was first printed in N. Y. Hist. Soc. "Collections," 2d ser., vol. 1, 1841, pp. 37-67, with an English translation by J. G. Cogswell. See also the printing in Raccolta Colombiana, pt. 3, vol. 2, 1893, pp. 332-341. A fragment derived from this text was also published in the latter collection, pp. 341-342.

A third text was discovered in a ms. in the collection of Count Giulio Macchi di Cèllere and was published by Alessandro Bacchiani in his monograph printed in Reale Soc. Geog. Ital. "Bollettino," ser. 4, vol. 10, 1909, pp. 1274-1323. A translation of Bacchiani's work by E. H. Hall was included in the 15th Annual Report of the Amer. Scen. and Hist. Pres. Soc., 1910, pp. 141-226.

A fourth text in a ms. in the Vatican library is described by Bacchiani in the sixth series of the "Bollettino" cited above, vol. 2, 1925, pp. 373-400, where he also gives other new information relating to Verrazzano, and states that the "enigma" of Verrazzano may be considered as solved.

A summary of earlier controversial literature as to the authenticity of Verrazzano's narrative is given in Winsor, vol. 4, 1884, pp. 16-29. See also E. G. Bourne's "Spain in America," 1904, p. 333, and Channing and Hart's "Guide," for briefer lists.

BIB.NAT., BM., HEH., JCB., NYP., STUTTGART LANDESBIBL. 99327

Harrisse 26, Ruge 39. First edition in Latin, before the title "Mundus Novus" and the terminal phrase "Laus Deo" were added. Number of lines to a page:—40, 40, 36, 36, 35, 35, 15 and stars, 22 and triangle, and 32. Watermarks:—(1) an open hand, and (2) a wheel of eight spokes, variants of Briquet 3. 11401 and 4. 13230. Both watermarks are in the John Carter Brown Library copy, and only the former in the Henry E. Huntington Library and New York Public Library copies. Eight copies recorded.

The book is in the form of a letter written by Vespucci from Lisbon to his former employer, Lorenzo Pier Francesco di Medici, head of the great commercial house in Florence, who died on May 20th of the same year 1503. Lorenzo's full name appears in this edition, but in the second edition and all the following Latin reprints the francisci part was left out inadvertently. One of the two German translations has the full name, having been made directly from the first edition. The other German version followed one of the reprints with the omission.

The type is small roman, measuring 75 mm. to twenty lines. In face it is the same apparently as Felix Baligault's type 12, used by him in the year 1500, which is on a slightly larger body of 77-78 mm. (Proctor, p. 591), or 78-79 mm. (Haebler's Typenrepertorium, 2. 293). See facsimiles in Claudin, vol. 2, p. 199, for the alphabet, and pp. 201-202, for two pages of the Compendium Memorandorum of 1500 (Proctor 8268). The printer's device on the title page of a tree and two monkeys, with the name felix hanging in a scroll, was used by Baligault from 1492 to 1503, and with the name Jehan Lambert added below in 1503, indicating a brief partnership of the two printers. After Baligault's death the same device with the two names was used for a while by Lambert alone, and later by the same printer with the name felix cut out. See illustrations in W. J. Meyer's Die Französischen Drucker- und Verlegerzeichen, 1926, nos. 82, 83 and 108, 109.

The narrative describes a third voyage in which Vespucci took part, fitted out at the expense and by the command of King Emanuel of Portugal, with the object of discovering new lands in the western ocean. Another account of the same voyage is in Vespucci's Lettera of 1505-06, known as the Soderini letter, containing additional details and dates which disagree in many places. From the two accounts it appears that the expedition comprised three ships, under a captain whose name is not given, which sailed from Lisbon on May 14, 1501, along the west coast of Africa to Cape Verde, and then southwest across the ocean for more than two months, reaching northern Brazil near Cape Saint Roque by the middle of August. There three of their men who were sent on shore were killed and eaten by the savage Indians. Following the coast in a south-easterly direction, on Saint Augustine's day (August 28) they doubled the most eastern headland of the continent, where the land made a turn to the southwest, and named it in honor of the day, Cape Saint Augustine. For nearly six months they continued a leisurely course, perhaps as far as the Rio de la Plata, always keeping in sight of land, making many landings and trading with the friendly Indians. At length on the 15th of February, 1502, having reached so far south that they guided their ships by the bright stars in the south polar sky, they turned away from the continent and directed their course to the southern ocean in search for other lands. Here they ran into great storms and high seas, and on the 7th of April came in sight of a rocky coast which they followed for nearly twenty leagues, without finding any port or inhabitants. The cold being now so great that no one in the fleet could endure it, they turned their ships to the northeast and made for the coast of Africa, reaching Sierra Leone on May 10th, the Azores by the end of July, and Lisbon on September 7th, 1502, completing a voyage of nearly sixteen months.

In the Medici letter the account of the voyage is comprised in the first seven paragraphs, and does not include some of the details just mentioned. The principal feature is the description of the wild Indians and their strange customs in the eighth paragraph, Primum igitur quo ad gentes, which attracted wide attention at the time, because it related how the people of both sexes went entirely naked, how they bored holes in their ears, noses and lips in which they wore shell and stone ornaments, how they used human flesh for food, and how they reached the age of one hundred and fifty years, being rarely sick. The ninth and tenth paragraphs, Aer ibi valde temperatus and Regionum illarum terra, relate to the climate, animals, birds, plants and fruits. The eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth paragraphs, on the constellations of the antarctic sky, are illustrated by two groups of three and six bright stars, each with a cluster of the figure 5 repeated sixteen times, and with the name canopus in the first group. The fourteenth paragraph, Igitur uti dixi, on navigation, is illustrated by an orthogonal or right-angled triangle measuring 41 by 43 mm., with the explanatory words vertex capitis nostri—vertex capitis illorum—hipotenusa—nos—and illi. In the next following editions, second to ninth inclusive, the two vertex explanations were replaced by zenit nostrum and zenit illorum; and in the tenth, eleventh and twelfth editions the triangle and explanations were omitted altogether. The fifteenth and sixteenth paragraphs, Hec fuerunt and A te veniam, contain Vespucci's plans for writing a geographical or cosmographical book, and for making a fourth voyage in the same direction, for which two ships were already promised. The seventeenth and final paragraph, Ex italiaca, gives the name of the translator Jocundus.

The full name of the translator, jocundus interpres, is said to be Fra Giovanni Giocondo of Verona who at that time was residing in Paris as royal architect to King Louis XII. The identification is found in the Speculi Orbis Declaratio of Gualtherus Lud printed at Strassburg in 1507, which reads:—"in libello Vespuccij per Jocundum Veronensem, qui apud Venetos architecti munere fungitur ex Italico in latinum sermonem verso impressum." In the German translations the name jocundus was taken for an adjective, and rendered as:—1. der hüpsch Tollmetsch, or 2. ein guter schwatzman, or 3. ein guder dichter. See account of Giocondo in the Biographie Universelle, tome 17 (1816), pp. 397-402, and in the Catholic Encyclopedia, vol. 6, pp. 563-564; D'Avezac's Martin Hylacomylus Waltzemüller, pp. 66-67; Harris's Additions, pp. 18-19; Vignaud's Americ Vespuce, p. 221; Magnaghi's Amerigo Vespucci, pp. 24-27.

Harris's Additions 14, Ruge 36. Second edition in Latin, and first with the title "Mundus Novus" and "Laus Deo" at the end. Number of lines to a page:—41, 44, 45, 34 and stars, 28 and stars, and 24 below the triangle. Watermarks:—(1) a figure of a broad brim hat, variant of Briquet 1. 3391, etc., as in the Henry E. Huntington Library and New York Public Library copies; and (2) a pair of scales, variant of Briquet 1. 2457, as in the John Carter Brown Library, Newberry Library and Princeton Library copies. A dozen or more copies recorded.

Besides giving the book an appropriate name and reducing it from six leaves to four by the use of smaller type, a number of alterations were made in the text and some obvious errors corrected. In the title heading of the second page two changes appear, the spelling of vespucius with one c and the omission of francisci in Lorenzo's name. Other changes as follows:—(page 2: line 29) per occidentem instead of ad occidentem; (3:13) cum ea gente conversati fuimus instead of conversati fuimus cum ea gente; (3:21-23) sine cognitione marine carte ... omnes naucleri totius orbis instead of sine marina charta ... omnes simul orbis naucleri; (4:14) sed omnia communia sunt instead of sed omnia sunt communia; (4:40) temperatus instead of temperatus est; (6:31) in latus: et in costas instead of in latus lateri costas; (7:11) id opus instead of ad opus; and (7:12) veniam posco instead of veniam non posco. The seventeen paragraphs of the first edition were reduced to twelve by running several together, and all were provided with large initials of varying sizes. The two vertex explanations of the triangle in the first edition were changed here to xenit nostrum and xenit illorum.

The type is small Latin text gothic, measuring 66–67 mm. for 20 lines. The capital letter M appears to be one of the variants of Dr. Haebler's M 87, and the type the same as Giovanni Battista de Sessa's Type 11, of 67–68 mm., described on pp. 96–97, Part 4, of the Typenrepertorium, and first used about the year 1500. It was identified with Sessa by the late Wilfrid M. Voynich in 1921, who found the type of the Vespucci in a book at that time in his possession, entitled:—Albubather. | Et | Centiloquium Diui Hermetis. | Colophon:] ¶ Impressum Venetijs per Jo. Baptistam Sessa anno Do- | mini. 1501. dies. 23. | Februarij. | (Panzer viii. 340, no. 26.) A photostat of one page made at the time shows also the same initials of two line height which are used for the last eight paragraphs of the Vespucci.

There are two issues of this edition, both in the British Museum, differing only in the size of the triangle on the seventh page and in the spelling of one of the accompanying words. In the earlier issue the triangle was too small, measuring 17 by 29 mm., and the word ipotenussa lacked the initial h. Both errors were corrected before many copies had been printed, the substituted triangle found in most copies measuring 42 by 42 mm.

Mass. Hist. Soc. photostat series, No. 99, ten copies reproduced from the British Museum original with the small triangle, October 1923. AAS., C., HEH., JCB., M., NEWBERRY, NYP., WHS., WLC., Y. An eleventh copy was made later for NYH.

HAMBURG COMMERZBIBL., HEH., NYP. 99329

Harris 22, Ruge 32. First issue of the third edition in Latin, with only "Laus Deo" at the end. Number of lines to a page:—38, 40, 40, 40, 34 and stars, 31 and stars, and 29 below the triangle. Watermark:—a pine cone in a holder, variant of Briquet 1. 2110, as in the Henry E. Huntington Library and New York Public Library copies. Three copies recorded.

This edition is a close reprint of the first issue of the second edition (Venice) with the small triangle, and includes all the changes in the text mentioned in the note to that edition with one exception: ad id opus was substituted for id opus in line 13 of the eighth page.

The type is Latin text gothic, Otmar's type 16, measuring 75 mm. to twenty lines. The title and the headline on the second page are in type 14. See Proctor, Part 2, pp. 75–76 for the types, and figs. 40 and 24, on pp. 219 and 212 for the facsimiles. The title page is in one line instead of two.

Harris 31, Ruge 25. Second issue of the third edition in Latin, with the addition at the end of a two line imprint containing names of place and printer and the year date 1504, in place of Laus Deo which was omitted. Number of lines to a page:—38, 40, 40, 40, 34 and stars, 31 and stars, and 30 below the triangle. Watermark:—outline of a bull's head with stick and cross above, variant of Briquet 4. 15240 and 4. 15260, as in the New York Public Library, John Carter Brown Library and Princeton Library copies. About a dozen copies recorded.

A close comparison with the first issue of this edition leads to the conclusion that the type was left standing and was not reset for this issue. Besides the new colophon imprint the following changes also were made:—(1) an error on the fifth page in the bottom line was corrected by altering salubris to salubrib(us), room being made by contracting infinitis to infinit(is) in the same line; (2) on the same page eighteen colons (:) were pulled out from sixteen different lines and thin types with feet up put in their places; (3) on the eighth page a colon was taken out from between the words feci and vt in the fifth line below the triangle so that they came close together; (4) on the second page the large initial P of the second paragraph was raised a little higher to be level with the top of the line; (5) on the eighth page the blank space between the triangle and the text below was increased from 10 to 12 mm.; and (6) there was a slight shifting of about one millimeter to one side or the other of some of the upper and lower lines of several pages, as in the two line title heading of the second page and in the lettering around the triangle on the eighth page. These changes appear without any alteration in the two following issues.

A third issue of this edition, having all the characteristics of the second issue, has the words Laus Deo added to the second line of the colophon imprint, as in a copy in the possession of Mr. Lathrop C. Harper of New York, formerly in the Fürstlich Öttinger-Wallersteinsche library at Mähingen, Germany, having watermark of a bull's head with stick and cross above, as in the second issue.

A fourth issue of this edition, the same as the third issue with Laus Deo added to the colophon imprint, has the title Mundus Nouus moved nearly an inch higher up on the first page, as in the Mainz Stadtbibliothek copy.

Harrisse 23, Ruge 33. Fourth edition in Latin, reprinted from the second issue of the second edition (Venice), with the large triangle. Number of lines to a page:—36, 41, 39, 42, 41, 29 and stars, 40, and 6 above the triangle. Watermark:—figure of a ladder, variant of Briquet 2. 5915, as in the Henry E. Huntington Library, New York Public Library and John Carter Brown Library copies. Fifteen copies recorded.

The alterations of text made in this edition, combined with the alterations of the Venice edition, served as the basis of all the later Latin editions printed at Nuremberg, Strassburg, Rostock, Cologne, Antwerp, and Paris. It was the first to appear without a separate title-page, the words Mundus nouus being placed at the head of the first page. The spelling of Vesputius with a t was adopted for the first time; the twelve paragraphs of the Venice edition were reduced to eleven by joining the sixth to the fifth; the whole first line of the fourth paragraph, Primum igitur quo ad gentes, was set in the large gothic type of the title heading and provided with a large ornamental initial; and the triangle (33 by 34 mm.) was moved from its right position under the eighth paragraph and placed at the end after the final paragraph under LAYS DEO. Typographically it is a fine piece of printing, and with few word contractions.

Besides reprinting the alterations in text described in the note to the Venice edition, some additional changes were made, for example:—(page 1: line 25) versus austrum Viginti mensibus instead of versus austrum et viginti mensibus; (2:9) coruscationibus instead of choruscationibus; (2:12) In hijs instead of in his; (3:38–39) in genis sive maxillis solum instead of in genis solum; (4:6) humanam crudelitatem instead of the correct humanam credulitatem; (4:17) ydolatre instead of idolatre; (4:29) carnem suillam instead of carnem suilam; (4:34) eis dissuadere instead of eos dissuadere; (5:2) contaminabant instead of contaminabant atque prostitutebant; (5:10) Non sunt piscatores instead of the correct Non sunt venatores; (5:37) saluti forent instead of saluti forent: et certe si paradisus terrestris in aliqua sit terre parte non longe ab illis regionibus distare existimo; (6:5–6) non est cum instead of non est figuratus cum; (6:8) Trigoni. Orthogoni. Schema. instead of trigoni orthogoni schema; and (8:5) contineantur in eo. instead of contineantur in ea.

It is to be remarked that all of the reprints except that of Strassburg have the wrong spelling Geseghice in the second paragraph, perhaps caused by mistaking the initial B for a G, or by following an unrecorded early issue of the Rome edition with the same error, which was corrected before many copies had been printed.

The type of this edition was identified with Eucharius Silber of Rome by Dr. Joseph Martini, while he was cataloguing a copy for Part 2 of the Robert Hoe auction sale in January 1912. Under No. 3332 of the Catalogue he noted that "the types, although a little worn, are the same as those used by Silber in the letter of Columbus (1493)." Confirmation of this identification is found in the British Museum Catalogue of xvth Century Books, Part 4, 1916, pp. 103–104, where descriptions are given of Silber's types and initial letters. The type of the Columbus of 1493 is listed there as 73 G (73 mm. gothic), small text type in the Venetian style, called by Proctor Silber's type 7. The large type of the heading Mundus nouus and of the first line of the fourth paragraph in the Vespucci appears to be 146 G (146 mm. gothic), large heading type, reproduced on Plate XI, called by Proctor Silber's type 11. The roman type of ALBERICVS, etc., in the title heading is like 109 R (109 mm. roman), large text type, reproduced on Plate X, called by Proctor Silber's type 4. The large decorated initial letters S and P of the first and fourth paragraphs seem to fit the description of No. 5a of Woodcut Capitals on p. 104, white on black background, with floral decoration, in double line frame, 21 by 22 mm. = 20 by 21 in the Vespucci; and the initials of paragraphs 2, 3, and 5–11, each two lines high, are evidently the same as No. 1 of Woodcut Capitals, small Lombards, 5 mm. high. These type identifications also correspond with Dr. Haebler's descriptions and measurements of Silber's type 7, 11, and 4, in his Typenrepertorium, Part 2, p. 97; and in the separate descriptions under M 91, Part 3 Gothic, p. 334; under M 18, Part 3 Gothic, p. 44; and under Q|u 108-110, Part 3 Antiqua, p. 36.

The New York Public Library copies of the Vespucci and the Columbus of 1493 have type measurements of 71 mm. for 20 lines in the former, and 72 mm. in the latter. As compared with the 73 mm. of the British Museum Catalogue and Dr. Haebler, the slight difference in measurement is due probably to shrinkage of paper.

Harrisse 24, Ruge 34. Fifth edition in Latin, reprinted from the fourth edition. Number of lines to a page:—39, 40, 40, 40, 40, 28 and stars, 17 and triangle, and 32. Watermark:—figure of the letter p, variant of Briquet 3. 8658, etc., as in the New York Public Library copy. Two copies recorded.

This was the first reprint from the Rome edition, which was followed closely in the size and number of leaves, in the title at the head of the first page, in the spelling of Vesputius with a t, in the number of eleven paragraphs, and in nearly all of the altered readings. The chief differences in the reprint are the use of ordinary small initials for all but two of the paragraphs, the use of ordinary type for the first line of the fourth paragraph, and the keeping of the triangle (32 by 32 mm.) in its right position under the eighth paragraph, with "Laus deo" under the eleventh paragraph at the bottom of the eighth page. There are also two variant readings, both incorrect:—(page 1: line 30) Geseghice instead of Beseghice; and (8:27) Ex Italia instead of Ex Italica.

The Ethiopian name for the port of Cape Verde was Besechicce, according to the Soderini letter of Vespucci in Italian, written in 1504 (Florence); and Besilicca in the Latin translation of 1507 (St. Dié). In the Latin version of the Medici letter it appears as beseghice or Beseghice in editions 1. 2. 3. 4. and 6. (Paris, Venice, Augsburg, Rome, Strassburg); as Geseghice or geseghice in editions 5. 7. 8. 9. 10. (Nuremberg, Rostock, Cologne, Antwerp, Paris); and as Gesephise in editions 11. and 12. (Paris). In the Italian Paesi of 1507 (Vicenza) it is biseghier. Markham's Vespucci, footnote on p. 35:—Bese quiche, now Gorée.

The type is Latin text gothic, with dot comma, double hyphen, thin parenthesis curves, and ¶ for nine of the paragraphs; twenty lines measure 82 mm.; and there is a mixture of wrong fount capitals, viz. a schwabacher A five times and a roman C once. A facsimile of this face type is shown in fig. 36, page 217 of Proctor, Part 2, 1903, and it is described on page 198 as the German variety of the Basel-Nuremberg text group, employed mostly by printers in Nuremberg, and in several other towns. In Nuremberg it was used by Georg Stuchs in 1501-1505 (type 12, 84 mm.), by Ambrosius Huber in 1501-1503 (type 1, 82 mm.), probably by Hieronymus Huber in 1504 (no specimen seen), and by Wolfgang Huber in 1505-1510 (type 5, 80 mm.), cast on bodies of differing size. Compared with these Vespucci type appears to be the same as the Ambrosius and Wolfgang Huber types, but the identification is not complete because the two Hubers used the ¶ instead of the ¶ and the mixture of wrong fount capitals was not found in their work. In view of this uncertainty it is evident that further research is necessary.

Harris 39, Ruge 28. Sixth edition in Latin of the Mundus Novus, reprinted from the fourth edition, but under a new title. Number of lines to a page:—18, 24, 37, 41, 38, 42, 40, 40, 41, 13 and triangle. Watermarks:—(1) figure of a small greek cross, variant apparently of Briquet 2. 5463 or 5464, as in the New York Public Library copy; and (2) a figure of the letter p, variant of Briquet 3. 8530, etc., as in the John Carter Brown Library and Princeton Library copies. Fifteen copies recorded.

Excepting the new title "De ora antarctica," the altered readings of the Rome edition were followed closely, including the spelling of Vesputius with a t, the spelling Beseghice in the second paragraph, the printing of the whole first line of the fourth paragraph in larger type, and the placing of the triangle at the end below "Laus Deo." The number of paragraphs was changed from eleven to twelve by dividing the fourth, and larger type was used also for the first lines of seven other paragraphs. The additions comprise an editorial epistle by Matthias Ringmann Philesius to Jacobus Brunus dated the 1st of August 1505 on the second page; a poem by Ringmann relating to the new found lands on the third page; and a supplementary or thirteenth paragraph on the eleventh page under the triangle by Johannes Michaelis, clerk of Viberg diocese, in which he declares that he was in Rome and present at the audience when the Portuguese ambassador delivered his "obedientia" oration before the new Pope Julius II., in which these new found lands were mentioned. The orator referred to was Dieghus Pacechus, the date of delivery June 4, 1505, and the oration was printed also by Silber at Rome. It is probable that the hearing of the oration induced Michaelis to buy a copy of Silber's edition of the Mundus Novus while in Rome, and to have it reprinted at Strassburg on his return, under the care of Ringmann in August 1505.

The type is described by Proctor as Hupfuff's type 6, small text Latin, round C as well as square, single hyphen, and measures 70 mm. to twenty lines. The first line of the title is in type 4, square canon type, short letters 9-10 mm.; and the second and third lines of the title, and the first lines of several of the paragraphs are in type 1, short letters measuring 5 mm. The large initial S on the fourth page, white on black background, with floral design, in single line frame, measures 30 by 32 mm. See Proctor, Part 2, no. 10011; also p. 29 for the types and initials, and figs. 45, 15, and 19, on pp. 221, 209 and 211 for the facsimiles. See also Veröff. d. Gesell. f. Typenkunde, Taf. 1291 and 745 for type facsimiles and alphabets, which show the peculiar capital D resembling a B of the first line of the title, sometimes misread Be Ora antarctica.

Harrisse Additions 13, Ruge 38. Seventh edition in Latin of the Mundus Novus, reprinted from the fourth edition, but under a different title and in folio size. Number of lines to a page:—46, 46, 48, 40 and stars, 40 and stars, 4 and triangle, 6 and globe map. Two copies recorded.

The chief characteristics of the Rome edition were followed in this reprint, like the title heading on the second page with the spelling Vesputius, the number of eleven paragraphs, the position of the triangle under the eleventh paragraph, and many of the altered readings which appeared first in that edition, including such errors as (4:8) crudelitatem for credulitatem, and (4:42) temporatus for temperatus. It did not use larger type however for the first line of any paragraph and omitted the "Laus Deo" at the end. Among readings which differ from those of the Rome edition are the following:—(page 2: 25–26) geseghice ... gradibus 41 instead of Beseghice ... gradibus 14; (2: 37–38) unquam videremus instead of nunquam videremus; (3:45) primi instead of pruni; (4:2) sine maxillis instead of sive maxillis; (4:47) the correct Non sunt venatores instead of Non sunt piscatores; (6: last line) quid autem fiet instead of Quid fiet; and (7:4) contineantur in ea instead of contineantur in eo. The additions are the new title on the first page, below which is a large woodcut of two naked Indians, a man and a woman, the former with large bow and arrows; and on the eighth page a globe map of the eastern hemisphere according to Ptolemy, with a six line paragraph above comparing the old knowledge with the new discoveries. It was probably on account of these large woodcuts that the folio size was used.

The type is described by Proctor under Ludwig Dietz of Rostock as his type 1, latin text gothic, curly-tailed h, double hyphen. "The first book (1505 June 7) bears the name of Hermann Barkhusen, and that of Dietz first appears in 1509 (Lisch no. 5), but the type in that book is the same as that of 1505, and it is probable that Barkhusen, who was Stadtssekretär of Rostock, was not himself a printer, but financed Dietz."—Index, Part 2, p. 115. A facsimile of the five line colophon of the first book, Barthold Möller's Commentarius in Donatum, June 7, 1505, is in Lisch's Geschichte der Buchdruckerkunst in Meklenburg, Schwerin 1839, Druckproben II. 1 b, and the type is identical with that of the Vespucci, measuring about 83 mm. to twenty lines. See Lisch pp. 63–91 for Hermann Barkhusen. The Vespucci is not mentioned by Lisch or Proctor.

The date of printing was probably between June and the middle of September, 1505. A casual visitor in Rostock whose name is unknown bought there a copy of Breydenbach's Peregrinatio, Speier 1502 (Proctor no. 11190) on the 18th of September, and about the same time received the Vespucci as a gift from Barkhusen, according to contemporary inscriptions on the two books, which are now in the Stadtbibliothek at Frankfurt-am-Main. See Dr. Emil Sarnow's introduction to the facsimile of the Vespucci, Strassburg 1903, described with the modern editions.

COLOGNE STADTBIBL., HEH. 99335

Harrisse Additions 12, Ruge 35. Eighth edition in Latin, reprinted from the fourth edition. Number of lines to a page:—42, 44, 41, 44, 36 and stars, 36 and stars, 25 and triangle. Watermark:—figure of a pot or jar with side handle, variant of Briquet 4. 12496 or 12625, as in the Henry E. Huntington Library copy. Two copies recorded.

The Rome edition is followed closely in this reprint, with the larger type for the first line of the fourth paragraph, the triangle under the eleventh paragraph, the various altered readings, and such errors as (3:31) crudelitatem for credulitatem; (4:30) temporatus for temperatus; and (4:36) piscatores for venatores. In one spelling however it differs, (1:28) Geseghice instead of Beseghice, for which see the note to the fourth edition.

The type, according to Proctor, Part 2, p. 61, is Landen's type 2, small like Quentell 6, but round h; double hyphen, smaller than that of Quentell; 66 mm. for twenty lines, as in this edition of Vespucci. The type of the first line of the title heading and of the first line of the fourth paragraph is Landen's type 1, large round, like Grüninger 17, short letters $4\frac{1}{2}$ mm. The type of the second and third lines of the title heading is Landen's type 4, latin text, 78 mm. For facsimiles see Veröff. d. Gesell. f. Typenkunde, Taf. 349, 348 and 424.

The small engraving on the eighth page contains the three figures of the infant Jesus, the Virgin Mary, and St. Anne, with the child stepping across, all within a single line border; and to fill out the page four ornamental border pieces were placed around the engraving. Three of the border pieces are broken at one end, and it is these broken pieces that helped to identify the printer, because they all appeared in the same condition and with the same engraving in the letter of King Emanuel entitled Gesta proxime per Portugalenses in India, printed by Landen at Cologne in 1507, Proctor no. 10487. A similar engraving of the Holy Family was used by another Cologne printer, Martin of Werden, which led the compiler of the Court catalogue to ascribe the printing to him. See Proctor, Part 2, pp. 61–62, for his account of this engraving as used by the two printers.

Harrisse 29, Ruge 37. Ninth edition in Latin, reprinted from the eighth edition, but with twenty-two words added to the title heading. Number of lines to a page:—44, 44, 41, 41, 36 and stars, 36 and stars, 25 and triangle. Watermarks:—(1) outline of a pot or vase with side handle, variant of Briquet 4. 12494, as in the Henry E. Huntington Library and New York Public Library copies; and (2) figure of the letter p with cross above, variant of Briquet 3. 8656 or 8673, as in the Harvard Library and John Carter Brown Library copies. Seven copies recorded.

The new feature of this edition was the enlarged title heading, advertising the strange manners and customs of the people of the new world lately found by the illustrious king of Portugal. In other respects it is a close imitation in smaller type of the Cologne edition, with which it agrees page for page and in most places line for line. Larger type was used likewise for the first line of the fourth paragraph, and the triangle was placed at the end under the eleventh paragraph and "Laus deo," but turned with the flat side up and the point at the bottom. The spelling Geseghice appears on the first page, but on (5:26) the word celo was left out after eo in the sentence Vidi in eo tres canopos, and there may be other similar misreadings.

The printer's device on the eighth page, representing a double-headed eagle with crown above, and on its breast a shield containing the city arms of Antwerp, a castle with two hands above, the whole in a line frame measuring 78 by 60 mm., was employed by Willem Vorsterman in his earliest book Den Spiegel van Sassen, about 1504, no. 1931 of Nijhoff and Kronenberg's Nederlandsche Bibliographie, 1923, and reproduced in Nijhoff's L'Art Typographique dans les Pays-Bas, vol. 2, 1926, as fig. 209 of W. Vorsterman's plate xxxiii.

The type is small latin text gothic, open A, round h, double hyphen, with Dr. Haebler's M 49, and measures 60 mm. to twenty lines. It is not reproduced in Holtrop nor in Nijhoff. The latter does not mention the Vespucci, but it was recorded briefly by Miss Kronenberg in the first supplement, 1925, from the copy in the Brussels Royal Library. There is a resemblance between the Vespucci type and that used by G. Leeu at Antwerp in 1485-1490, reproduced in Holtrop's Monuments Typographiques, 79, d 2, but it is not the same.

BIB.DE TROYES, BIB.NAT., NYP. 99337

Harrisse 28. Tenth edition in Latin, reprinted with the enlarged title heading from the ninth edition, but without the stars and triangle. Number of lines to a page:—26, 28, 30, 29, 30, 27, 30, 30, 31, 31, 24, 24, 27, 25, and 23. Watermark—outline of some figure on the sixth leaf, but so obscured by the print in the New York Public Library copy that it has not been made out. Four copies recorded.

This edition and the two following, all three in small octavo size and with the extended title heading of the Antwerp edition, are very much alike and run line for line the same in many places. The typographical errors which they contain have served to show the order in which they were printed. They all have the error which appeared first in the Antwerp edition of leaving out the word celo in the sentence Vidi in eo [celo] tres canopos. The tenth edition is the first of the two containing the error opera limpensis in the title heading instead of opera et impensis. Another error on the same page is in the sentence beginning Etenim hec opinionem, in which the words ultra lineam equinoctialem of the Antwerp edition are made to read without sense ultra sine a me qui noctialem. This error was repeated in the eleventh and twelfth editions with the alteration of sine to sive in both. This edition has the spelling Gesehice on the third page, like the Antwerp edition, but the eleventh and twelfth editions made it Gesephise.

The device of Gilles de Gourmont on the title is reproduced in Brunet's Manuel I. 198, from the Alphabetum Graecum of 1507; and also in Silvestre's Marques Typographiques, no. 82. The type is small gothic, with a variation of Dr. Haebler's M 32, double hyphen, and measures 62 mm. to twenty lines. According to Ph. Renouard's Imprimeurs Parisiens, 1898, Gilles de Gourmont began his business as bookseller and printer in 1506, instead of 1507 as given by Lottin. We have ventured therefore to use the earlier date for the Vespucci.

Harris 27. Eleventh edition in Latin, reprinted with the enlarged title heading from the tenth edition, and also without the stars and triangle. Number of lines to a page:—25, 27, 30, 29, 30, 24, 30, 30, 29, 31, 24, 23, 26, 24, and 24. Watermark:—not found in the five original leaves of the New York Public Library copy, perhaps obscured by the print. Two copies recorded.

The errors opera limpensis and ultra sine a me qui noctialem on the second page of the tenth edition were reprinted here, but with the change in the latter of sine to sive. On the same page two new errors appeared:—(1) cognitio audientibus instead of the correct cognitio et audientibus; (2) quam in nostram Europam instead of the correct quam nostram Europam; and on the fifteenth page (3) Oro itaque . . . des vite instead of the correct Oro itaque . . . dies vite. The spelling Gesehice of the tenth edition was changed here to Gesephise. At the beginning of the fourth line of the last paragraph the letter u of riantur was misplaced.

The device of Denis Roce on the title is called his third device by W. J. Meyer in his Die Französischen Drucker- und Verlegerzeichen, 1926, no. 154, where it was reproduced from St. Thomas Aquinas's Confessionale, about 1500, Pellechet 957; also in Silvestre's Marques Typographiques, no. 451, and in Claudin 2. 531. The device reproduced in Brunet's Manuel 3. 1199, from Lucanus's Pharsalia of 1512, and in Silvestre no. 104, although nearly the same, is Roce's fourth device and was probably engraved some time after the printing of the Vespucci. The type is small gothic, with Dr. Haebler's M 49, curly-tailed h, double hyphen and also sloping comma for hyphen, and measures 65 mm. to twenty lines. Denis Roce, according to Ph. Renouard's Imprimeurs Parisiens, 1898, was in business from 1490 to 1518, as bookseller, printer, and bookbinder. Mr. Proctor, however, does not include him with the printers, but places his name among the stationers for the last decade of the fifteenth century.

Harris 25. Twelfth edition in Latin, reprinted with the enlarged title heading from the eleventh edition, and also without the stars and triangle. Number of lines to a page:—25, 29, 30, 29, 30, 25, 30, 30, 28, 31, 24, 27, 29, 26, and 25. Watermark:—figure of a toothed wheel with six spikes, variant of Briquet 4. 13278, as in the Henry E. Huntington Library, New York Public Library, John Carter Brown Library, and Rothschild Library copies. Five copies recorded.

The error opera limpensis in the title headings of the tenth and eleventh editions was corrected here to opera et impensis as in the ninth edition, but a new mistake was made in the next line by printing super idibus annis instead of superioribus annis. Two other errors which appeared first in the eleventh edition were repeated on the same page:—(1) cognitio audientibus instead of the correct cognitio et audientibus; and (2) quam in nostram Europam instead of the correct quam nostram Europam. Other errors and spellings of the eleventh edition which were also reprinted here are ultra sive a me qui noctialem on the second page, Gesephise on the third page, and Oro itaque . . . des vite on the fifteenth page.

The type is small gothic, with a variant of Dr. Haebler's M 88, curly-tailed h, double hyphen and also sloping comma for hyphen, and measures 65 mm. to twenty lines. A reproduction of the second page is in the Rothschild Catalogue, vol. 2, 1887, no. 1949, pp. 424–425, where M. Émile Picot identified the type as that of Berthold Rembolt, the same as used by him in Michael Lochmaier's Parrochiale curatorium of 1511, in the Bibliothèque Nationale. Ulrich Gering and Berthold Rembolt, according to Ph. Renouard, were associated in partnership as booksellers and printers from 1494 to Gering's death in 1510, after which date Rembolt continued the business in partnership with others and alone until his own death in 1518.

BASEL UNIV.BIBL., BM., JCB. 99340

Harris 37, Ruge 42. First edition in German of the Basel translation, made from the first edition in Latin. Number of lines to a page:—28, 32, 33, 33, 31, 32, 33, 33, 32, 31, 29, 25 and stars, 33, 19 below the triangle, and 31. Watermark:—figure of a bull's head with star above, variant of Briquet 4. 14246, as in the British Museum and John Carter Brown Library copies. Five copies recorded.

The type is Michael Furter's no. 8*, german text, first used about 1500, with Dr. Haebler's M 44 (Typenrepertorium 1. 22 and 178-179), capital H similar to that in Proctor's fig. 53, reversed capital S for D as in Proctor's fig. 54 (Index, Part 2, pp. 224-225), hyphen mostly double with some single, no paragraph mark, and with measurement of 91-92 mm. to twenty lines. It was identified with Furter by Dr. A. Pfister of Basel University Library, who compared the Vespucci with Etterlyn's Swiss Kronica printed by Furter in 1507, and found the initials and text type to be the same (Dr. Pfister's letter of 29 August 1934). A comparison with another copy of the Etterlyn Chronicle of 1507 owned by Mr. Adolph Lewisohn of New York confirmed the identification. The large type of the first line of the title, and the type of the top lines of the second and third pages, are Furter's no. 7 (title type) and no. 2, similar in face and size to those of Proctor's fig. 16 and 18, on page 210 of his Index, Part 2. The engraving on the title was intended to represent the standing figure of King Emanuel of Portugal, with scepter and shield bearing the Portuguese arms. It was suggested perhaps by somewhat similar engravings of the standing figure of King Ferdinand of Spain, with two shields bearing the arms of Castile, Leon and Granada, which appeared in the Basel edition of the Columbus Letter of 1493 and in the Basel edition of the Verardus-Columbus of 1494.

The translation follows Lambert's Latin edition in giving the full name of Laurentius Petrus Franciscus de Medici, but divides the narrative into only six paragraphs. The name beseghice is spelled here beseglitte (3:18), and Mandingha becomes Mandinglia. The two groups of three and six bright stars are both on the thirteenth page with the words Wyss Canops in the first group; the triangle (49 by 45 mm.) and its explanations Unser haupts choppf, etc., are on the fifteenth page; and the final paragraph on the sixteenth page has the name of jocundus interpres turned into der hüpsch Tollmetsch. A supplementary sentence was added at the end of the paragraph, to make known that this missive was drawn out of Latin into German from the exemplar that came from Paris in the middle of the month of May, in the year after Christ's birth xv hundred and five. In the next four editions the word mitle of this sentence was omitted.

Harrisse 34, Ruge 41. Second edition in German of the Basel translation. Number of lines to a page:—26, 34, 35, 35, 35, 35, 35, 30, 21 and stars, 28, 22 and triangle, and 22. Four copies recorded.

This edition is no. 10613 of Proctor, Part 2, page 72, under Johann Schönsperger the elder, and the type is Schönsperger's no. 9, German and Latin text type used in 1494–1505, measuring 87–88 mm. to twenty lines. See facsimiles of the type from Schedel's Liber chronicarum 1497 on Taf. 2 of Veröff. d. Gesell. f. Typenkunde, with a full alphabet; on Plate xxxiv of Part 2 of the British Museum Catalogue of xvth Century Books; and also from the similar face type of E. Öglin in Proctor's fig. 60, on page 228 of his Index, Part 2. The large type of the top lines of the first three pages is Schönsperger's no. 4, like that of Proctor's fig. 19, Part 2, page 211; and with full alphabet on Taf. 493 of Veröff. d. Gesell. f. Typenkunde.

Among the alterations made in this edition are (1) die wol instead of so wol in the title; (2:8) worfar kain wissen dauon instead of worfar vettern dauon keyn wissen; (2:9) aller ding ain instead of eyn aller ding; (2:10) mainung instead of wenung; (3:16) überwunden instead of beseglitte; (4:10) glück funden instead of glück verheilet vnd funden; and probably others. The two groups of three and six bright stars are on the eleventh page with Weiss Canopus in the first group and Canopus in the second. The triangle (56 by 23 mm.) on the thirteenth page has the upright line shortened, and the explanatory words were rudely engraved instead of in type. In the last line on the fourteenth page the word mitle was omitted after the name of the month in the date line.

Harrisse Additions 21, Ruge 44. Third edition in German of the Basel translation. Number of lines to a page:—29, 29, 30, 30, 30, 30, 30, 30, 30, 31, 30, 30, 30, 19 and stars, 21 and stars, 30, 18 and triangle, 28, and 13. One copy recorded.

The type is Johann Schobser's no. 3, early-style square German text, thin ¶, short double hyphen, and measures 97–98 mm. to twenty lines. It was used by him first at Augsburg in 1494, and then at Munich from 1500 to 1516. The larger type of the first three pages is Schobser's no. 6. See Proctor, Part 2, page 139, and fig. 26 on page 213 for the no. 6 type; and Dr. Karl Schottenloher's Der Münchner Buchdrucker Hans Schobser 1500–1530, München 1925, p. 13 for the type, 21 for the Vespucci, and Plates 2–5, 7–9 for the facsimiles.

The alterations of text in the second German edition were followed closely in this reprint, including die wol instead of so wol in the title, über wunden instead of beseglitte on (3:22), and the other changes listed in the note to that edition. The two groups of three and six bright stars are on the fifteenth and sixteenth pages with the same lettering as in the second edition; and the triangle with the shortened upright (57 by 27 mm.) is on the eighteenth page, with the explanations in type instead of engraved.

Harrisse 38, Ruge 43. Fourth edition in German of the Basel translation, and the first of Huber's two editions. Number of lines to a page:—25, 34, 35, 35, 35, 35, 35, 30, 21 and stars, 27, 23 and triangle, and 21. Watermark:—figure of a pot or jar with side handle, variant of Briquet 4. 12494, as in the John Carter Brown Library and New York Public Library copies. Six copies recorded.

The type is Wolfgang Huber's no. 1, small text schwabacher, like Hölzel's no. 4, double hyphen, slanting comma, and ¶, twenty lines measuring 87–88 mm. The larger type at the top of the first three pages is Huber's no. 7, narrow church text, like Hölzel's no. 3. See Proctor, Part 2, page 102, and fig. 59 and 22, on pp. 227 and 212. The Vespucci is no. 10982 of Proctor's list, under Hieronymus Hölzel of Nuremberg, with his types 3 and 4; but it should have been entered under Wolfgang Huber, whose second edition with the same type and engravings has his name at the end as printer. The engraving of King Emanuel on the title is from the same cut that was used in the second German edition. How it came into Huber's possession is unknown. Schönsperger probably retired from business in 1505, because according to Proctor there seem to be no known productions of his press between 1505 and 1514, and the cut must have changed ownership about that time.

In the reprinting of this edition it is evident that the first and second German editions were both used. Most of the altered readings of the latter were repeated, like (1:2) die wol; (2:1) Vespuctius; (2:9) aller ding ein und meinung; (3:15–16) eber wunden, and others. On the other hand the former was followed in some places, like (1:3) portigal instead of Portugal; (2:8) vorfarn vettern dauon keyn wissen instead of vorfarn kain wissen dauon; and (4:10) glück verheilet vnd funden instead of glück funden. The three and six bright stars on the eleventh page have the lettering in both groups as in the second edition; but the triangle on the thirteenth page (52 by 27 mm.) and the explanatory inscriptions were reengraved on a new block.

HAMBURG COMMERZBIBL., JCB., MUNICH STAATSBIBL. 99344

Harrisse 33, Ruge 40. Fifth edition in German of the Basel translation, and Huber's second edition. Number of lines to a page:—35, 37, 37, 37, 37, 37, 31 and stars, 30 and stars, 25 and triangle, 20 and shields. Watermark:—outline of a bull's head, with line and double cross above, variant of Briquet 4. 15308, as in the John Carter Brown Library copy. Five copies recorded.

The type and engravings are the same as in Huber's first edition, the fourteen pages of which were reduced to eleven by lengthening the lines in this edition. Two slight changes appear in the title engraving of King Emanuel: (1) a break in the lower line extending from the king's left shoulder, making two lines out of one; and (2) the under side of the sword between the king's left leg and the shield was made even by cutting away the black protuberances that showed in the two earlier editions of Schönsperger and Huber.

To make this edition conform more closely to the second (Schönsperger's) German edition, certain readings used in the preceding edition were discarded by changing to Portugall on (1:3) and Portugal on (2:5); to vorfarn kein wissen dauon on (2:7); and to glück funden on (3:24). A mistake was made however on (3:29-30) by leaving out a whole line, as in the bracketed portion of the following sentence:—völ ist on zal vil [inwonender leutten den wir dar in gefunden haben an zal vil] völcker vn leüt. The three and six bright stars on the eighth and ninth pages are the same, with the exception that the type inscription in the first group reads Weiss Canopus instead of Weyss Canopus. The triangle (52 by 27 mm.) with its engraved explanations is from the same woodcut block as in the preceding edition.

Emil Weller in his Repertorium typographicum, Nördlingen 1864, supplementing Panzer's Annalen, was the first bibliographer who stated correctly that this edition was the second of two which were printed by Wolfgang Huber. See his no. 335, "Zweite Ausg. Hubers." Referring to this statement, Mr. Harrisse in his Additions, 1872, p. 25, note, remarked doubtfully:—"Weller . . . asserts that there are two editions of the German Vespucci published by Wolfgang Hueber at Nuremberg in 1505." A curious mistake occurred in the title of this edition as given in Panzer's Zusätze zu den Annalen, Leipzig 1802, p. 102, no. 561 b. This was copied from a description by Superintendent Schnitzer in the fifth Anzeige der Kirchenbibl., p. 31, no. 23, where by a process of ingenious twisting the following imprint was obtained:—Gedruckt yn Nürnberg durch Wolfgang Hueber ym Maienmonet nach Christi gepurt Funfzehn hundert vnd fünf Jahr. This "Seltenheit" of Panzer's was referred to by Proctor, Part 2, p. 102, as authority for May 1505, instead of 1507, as the earliest recorded date of Wolfgang Huber's printing.

BERLIN STAATSBIBL., HEH. 99345

Ruge 27, Church Catalogue 22. First edition in German of the Strassburg translation, and the first of three editions printed by Hupfuff. Watermark:—a large letter p with fleur-de-lis at the top, variant of Briquet 3. 8725, as in the Henry E. Huntington Library copy. Two copies recorded, the Berlin copy lacking the title leaf.

The translation was made either from the fourth Latin edition (Rome), or from Hupfuff's Latin edition De ora antarctica. It has the same two engravings on the title page as the latter, the upper one showing four naked savages and the lower one five ships. On the reverse are two engravings, the upper one showing two men approaching a city gate, and the lower one a ship full of men. The heading on the third page, Von der Nüwen welt, may have been suggested by the Mundus nouus of the Rome edition. The eleven paragraphs of that edition were reduced here to ten by joining the fifth and sixth, and were numbered as chapters, from Das erst Capitel to Das Zehend Capittel. The spellings Vesputius, Beseghice, and Mandinga were retained, but the figures of the stars and the triangle were omitted. The last chapter states that "Ein güter schwatzman" has turned this epistle out of the Italian tongue into Latin and now into German.

The type is Hupfuff's type 2, German semi-cursive, used as early as 1498, and reproduced as Hupfuff 94, but with an earlier form of the capital D resembling a B, on Plate xv of the British Museum Catalogue of xvth Century Books, Part 1, 1908. Dr. Haebler's measurement of the same type is 94/5 mm. to twenty lines in his Typenrepertorium, Part 1, pp. 101, 174. The first line of the title is in Hupfuff's type 4, and the second line of the title, the headlines and chapter headings are in type 1, as described in Proctor, Part 2, p. 29, with facsimiles of similar types in fig. 15 and 19, on pp. 209 and 211. See also Veröff. d. Gesell. f. Typenkunde, Taf. 1291 and 745 for type facsimiles and alphabets, which show the peculiar capital D resembling a B, used in the chapter headings Das erst Capitel, etc. The Harrisse Additions 20, Ruge 26. Wolfgang Stöckel's edition in German of the Strassburg translation, reprinted from Hupfuff's first edition. Three copies recorded.

The type is Stöckel's no. 6, small text schwabacher, thick ¶ in and after 1504, short comma from 1503, double hyphen, and measurement of 89 mm. to twenty lines. The title and chapter headings are in type no. 5, a narrow church text. See Proctor, Part 2, pp. 128-129 for type and device, and fig. 59 and 21, on pp. 227 and 211, for facsimiles. On the title is an engraving of a wodwo or wild man carrying the Leipzig arms, which Proctor found in seven other books from Stöckel's press. In the final chapter the word welscher is used where the Hupfuff and Landsberg editions have Italischer.

Harrisse 40, Ruge 29. Hupfuff's second edition in German of the Strassburg translation. No watermark found in the New York Public Library copy. Two copies recorded, the New York copy having a small part of the date line in facsimile.

There is a close resemblance between this and Hupfuff's first edition. The title page and its two engravings are the same, and so are the three sizes of Hupfuff's types and the large floriated initial I. The differences are in the two new engravings on the back of the title, which replaced those in the former edition, and the repeating of the lower one on the last page. The new cuts show (above) four sea monsters in the water with two men standing near, and (below) a one masted empty ship and two men, one crowned, on the shore. The text was reprinted with less crowding at the end, so that it ran over on the sixteenth page, and Hupfuff's name was omitted in the colophon. The repeated engraving was used to fill out the page. A small hole in the last leaf of the New York copy took away the words vnd sechss of the date line in the colophon, and in repairing the gap the substituted facsimile was made to read vnd sechst. The error was copied by Harrisse and other bibliographers excepting Ruge, who followed the perfect Berlin copy.

HARRISSE 41. Martin Landsberg's first edition in German of the Strassburg translation, reprinted from Hupfuff's first edition. Watermark:—an open hand with cross above, variant of Briquet 3. 11418, as in the Henry E. Huntington Library copy. Three copies recorded, the Huntington copy lacking the second and fifth leaves.

The two engravings on the title, of four naked savages and of five ships, are re-engraved copies of those in the De ora antarctica and in Hupfuff's German editions. The text type is Landsberg's no. 1, heavy faced small schwabacher, with ¶, short double hyphen sloping downwards, and measurement of 87 mm. to twenty lines. The title and chapter headings are in no. 5, church and title type. The printer's device at the end shows two shields hanging from a branch. The Vespucci is no. 11278 of Proctor, Part 2, with descriptions of type and device on page 122, and reproduction in fig. 62 on page 229. Type 5 is reproduced as Landsberg 172 on Plate LXI of the British Museum Catalogue of xvth Century Books, Part 3, 1913. Reproductions and alphabets of both types and the printer's device are shown on Taf. 38, 518, 519, 1206 and 1207 of the Veröff. d. Gesell. f. Typenkunde.

RUGE 30. Martin Landsberg's second edition in German of the Strassburg translation, reprinted from his first edition. One copy recorded. The two engravings on the title are the same, and the same types were used, but were reset for the whole book. A few of the variations in spelling may be mentioned:—Iusulen and yetz and Kunig and Portygal on the title, instead of Insulen and ytz and kunigk and Portigal, and other similar variations throughout. The last three pages were so condensed that most of the ninth chapter was crowded into the eleventh page, instead of being all on the twelfth as in the other edition.

Ruge 31. Jacob Winter's edition in German of the Strassburg translation, reprinted from Stöckel's Leipzig edition of 1505. One copy recorded. The text type is Winter's no. 2, small schwabacher like Landsberg 1, short double hyphen, medium comma, and measurement of 85–86 mm. to twenty lines. The title and chapter headings are in type 1, broad square church, double hyphen. See Proctor, Part 2, page 120, and fig. 62 and 17, on pp. 229 and 210, for reproductions. In the last chapter the word welscher is used as in Stöckel's edition, instead of Italischer as in the Hupfuff and Landsberg editions.

The authority for this edition is Brunet's Manuel, tome 5 (1864), col. 1156, amplified from the briefer statement in the 1843 edition by adding the above imprint, "et présente le même vignette que l'édition de 1506." Harrisse Additions 15, Proctor's Doesborgh 3. A Dutch translation, probably made from Vorsterman's Latin edition. Number of lines:—seven full pages with 30, one page with 31, seven part pages of text and engravings or stars, and one page with engraving only. Watermarks:—(1) an indeterminate figure in sheet A not identified in Briquet, and (2) the letter p in sheet B, variant of Briquet 3. 8634. Only one copy recorded.

The text is divided into eleven chapters, each one except the last with a descriptive heading. The first, fifth and eleventh are without chapter numbers; Cap. vii and viii are misnumbered viii and vi, respectively. There are four engravings, two of them used twice, making six altogether. The first engraving (pages 1 and 12) is the pictorial triangle belonging to the eighth chapter, showing two naked South American Indians in one compartment on the perpendicular side, standing at right angles with three clothed Europeans in the other compartment on the horizontal side. The second engraving (page 2) illustrates the stormy voyage described in the second chapter by the picture of a man being thrown from a ship to a large fish with wide open mouth. The third engraving (pages 5 and 16) shows four naked Indians, male and female, to illustrate Chap. 4. The fourth engraving (page 8) represents a group of six Indians fighting with bows and arrows, illustrating Chap. 5. There are also figures of six stars (page 11) and three stars (page 13), each group lettered Canopus albus, to illustrate Chap. 7 (misnumbered viii). The heading of Chap. x would read in English, "How this navigator will undertake a fourth voyage yet with two ships built here in Holland, if God spares him." The eleventh chapter states that the book was translated from Italian into Latin, and from Latin into Dutch.

The type is similar to old English Black Letter, and is described by Proctor as Doesborch's no. 1, the size in which most of his books were printed, twenty lines measuring 97 mm. See Proctor's Jan van Doesborgh, Printer at Antwerp, Bibliographical Society Monograph No. 2, London 1894, pages 9, 22, 43-44; Frederik Muller's Catalogue of Books on America, Amsterdam 1872, pages 5-7, no. 24, with facsimile of the first page; John Carter Brown Catalogue, vol. 1, 1875 edition, pages 44-47, and 1919 edition, page 48.

BM., FLORENCE BIB.NAZ., PRINCETON, ROTHSCHILD. 99353

Harris 87. First edition in Italian of the Four Voyages. Watermarks:—(1) a fleur-de-lis, and (2) a pair of scales in a circle, variants of Briquet 2. 6791 and 1. 2445, on sheet a; (3) a double Latin cross in a circle, not found in Briquet, on sheets b and c, as in the Princeton Library copy, described by Mr. Gerould. Six copies recorded, of which three are in private collections.

Pietro Pacini da Pescia was established in Florence as publisher and bookseller from 1495 or earlier to 1513, and was succeeded by his son Bernardo some time between 1513 and 1519. He made a specialty of low-priced Italian literature, and employed as printers Lorenzo Morgiani and Giovanni di Pietro da Maganza for the early period, Lorenzo Morgiani alone from 1496 to after 1500, and Carlo da Pavia to 1513 or later. In the books of 1505 to 1508 described by Panzer and others only Pacini's name appears, the printers not being named. It is therefore uncertain whether the Vespucci was printed by Morgiani or by Carlo da Pavia. The same type was used by both printers from 1496 to 1516, with occasional recasting of certain letters, like the capital Q with a longer tail and the ¶ with shorter tails, in 1505. This type was a small round roman, measuring 84-85 mm. to twenty lines. In its early form Proctor described it as Morgiani's type 4, of 83 mm.; and the British Museum Catalogue as 85 R, with facsimile on Plate XLIX. The large gothic type of the title is similar to Bonaccorsi's 145 G of which there is a facsimile on Plate XLVII of the same catalogue. The Poggiali copy of the Vespucci in the Biblioteca Nazionale of Florence and the Varnhagen copy were both in old binding with the Basilius of 1505-06, published by Pacini, and in the same type. The British Museum and Princeton Library copies were likewise bound formerly with the Corsali Lettera, printed by Carlo da Pavia in December 1516, also in the same type.

Mass. Hist. Soc. photostat series, No. 47, ten copies reproduced by photostat from the British Museum original, August 1921. AAS., C., HEH., JCB., M., NEWBERRY, NYP., WHS., WLC., Y. Another copy was made later for NYH.

Facsimiles are described with the modern editions.

A seventeenth or eighteenth century copy of an early transcript dated February 10, 1504 (Florentine style, i.e. 1505) is in the Magliabechiana collection in the Biblioteca Nazionale at Florence (mss., II, IV, 509). It appears to be transcribed from a source other than that of the printed text since there are several variations, notably the reading "Parias," instead of "Lariab" as appears in the printed edition on the verso of leaf 7, line 15. The title reads "Lettera di Amerigo Vespucci a Piero Soderini Gonfaloniere l'Anno 1504." It is signed at the end: "Copiata hoggi questo dì x di Febbraio mccccciij per me Ser Lorenzo di Piero Choralmi dà Dicomano Notario fiorentino, a compiacenza de Magnifici Girolamo di Nofri del Caccia, et Baldino del Troscia due del numero dei nostri Magnifici, et Eccelsi signori di Libertà del Popolo Fiorentino benemerito; Ai quali Io sono loro buono servitore. Laus Deo" which Dr. Northup in his English version of the Soderini letter, 1916, p. 8, translates as follows: "Copied today this tenth day of February, 1504, by me Don Lorenzo di Piero Choralmi dà Dicomano, Florentine notary, to oblige their Magnificences Girolamo di Nofri del Caccia and Baldino Troscia, two of the number of our magnificent and exalted lords, well deserving of the free people of Florence. Whose good servant I am. Praise be unto God." A photograph of the Magliabechiana manuscript is in the Princeton University Library.

Another transcript which is in the handwriting of Piero Vagliente, a contemporary of Vespucci, was published in Magnaghi's Amerigo Vespucci, Rome [1926], pp. 249-272. It is in the Biblioteca Riccardiana in Florence (cod. 1910, leaves 100 verso-120 verso) and among other variations from the printed text it reads "parias" like the Magliabechiana transcript instead of "Lariab." According to Magnaghi, the title is as follows: "Chopia d'una lettera da Lisbona d'Amerigho di ser Nastago Vespucci al m.^o ghonfalonieri Piero Soderini delle cose del nuovo viaggio fa fare . . . Manovello re di Portoghallo delle parte de l'India."

A third transcript with the reading "Perias" instead of "Lariab" is referred to in Napione's Esame critico, Florence 1811, pp. 24-25, as belonging at that time to Antonio Amoretti in Rome. We are not aware of the present location of this codex.

44-45. BM., C., HEH., JCB., NYP. 99354

First edition in Latin of the Four Voyages, translated from the Italian letter to Pier Soderini into French, and from the French into Latin by Jean Basin of Sandaucourt, at the request of Gualtherus Lud. It forms the second part (32 leaves, bii to f₆) of Martin Waldseemüller's Cosmographiae Introductio of April 25, 1507, the first part containing 20 leaves, making a total of 52 leaves or 104 pages, besides a folded diagram. Facing the Vespucci title is a geographical poem in twenty-two lines by Philesius Vogesigena Lectori, on leaf bij verso, beginning "Rura papirifero," etc., and referring to the book in these words:

Sed quid plura? situm, gentis moresque reperte

Americi parua mole libellus habet.

The printer's device, white on black ground, is a double cross above a circle, with the letters S.D., G.L., N.L., and M.L., which are supposed to stand for Sancti Deodati or "Salutem dicit," Gualtherus Lud, Nicolaus Lud, and Martinus Ilacomylus or Waldseemüller.

A facsimile of this edition of the Cosmographiae Introductio, edited by Fr. R. v. Wieser, Strassburg 1907, forms no. xii of the series Drucke und Holzschnitte des xv. und xvi. Jahrhunderts in getreuer Nachbildung; another facsimile, with an English translation, New York 1907, was published as Monograph iv by the United States Catholic Historical Society.

Harrisse Additions 31, Ruge 46. First edition in German of the Four Voyages, translated from the Latin of Jean Basin. There are two issues, differing only in the second line of the colophon; some copies reading vff Mitfast with a period, as in the description above; and others reading vff Letare with a comma, as in the following number.

The words following the colophon date refer to the book Der welt kugel, Strassburg 1509, vff ostern, an elementary description of the world globe intended to accompany Waldseemüller's small globe and "enser grosse Mappa," both for sale by Grüniger. It is probable that some copies were issued with the German Vespucci.

A facsimile of the Mitfast issue is described below with the modern editions.

Ruge 45. The only known copy is in a bound volume, folded to make two leaves, with the large engraving on the left hand side and the text on the right. There are two lines of text above the engraving and forty-two lines below, making altogether forty-four lines. According to Ruge the engraving measures 240 by 170 mm., and the text below 245 by 376 mm. The last number is an obvious error for 176, as shown by the photograph. The narrative is an abridgment or rather an extract from the Basel German translation, made apparently from Schönsperger's Augsburg edition. It relates almost entirely to the wild natives and their manner of living.

The type is Georg Stuchs's no. 18, small text schwabacher, short comma, double hyphen, 89 mm. to twenty lines; and the larger type of the top line is his type 6. See Proctor, Part 2, page 95, and fig. 59 and 22 on pp. 227 and 212. The larger type is shown also as 168B on plate XLIII of the British Museum Catalogue of xvth Century Books, Part 2, 1912. The identification was made by a comparison with Stuchs's edition of Den rechten weg auss zu faren von Lissbona gen Kallakuth, c. 1505-6, no. 10966 of Proctor and with the above mentioned facsimile of the larger type in the British Museum Catalogue.

Weller 317, HARRISSE Additions page viii. A large wood engraving with a description below in four long lines printed from type. According to Georg Leidinger's article mentioned below, the Munich Library original measures 336 by 223 mm., and is lightly colored in brown, yellow and green. The engraving shows a group of eleven Indians under a roof made of tree branches, near the water, their heads, arms, waists and ankles adorned with feathers. Two of the men carry large bows for arrows and one man holds a spear. A man seated is eating from a roasted human arm, while another arm, a leg and a hand are hanging over the fire. In the foreground a seated woman is nursing a child, with two older children standing near. There are also two ships some distance from the shore.

The text of the description, excepting that portion relating to the wearing of feathers, was evidently taken from the Vespucci narrative, and the mention of the "Christian" King of Portugal in the first line would indicate the Basel German translation as the source. The first sentence turned into English would read:—This picture shows us the people and island which has been discovered by the Christian King of Portugal or by his subjects. The text goes on to describe the people as naked, handsome, brown, and well shaped in body, bedecked a little with feathers, and wearing many precious stones in their faces and breasts. It also states that no one owned any property, all things being in common; that the men had as wives those who pleased them, making no distinction between mothers, sisters or friends; that they fought among themselves and ate those who were slain, hanging the flesh in the smoke; that they lived to be one hundred and fifty years old; and that they had no government.

Similar descriptions of these Indians are found in two of the following titles, one a broadside in Latin and the other a book in English, both printed at Antwerp by Jan van Doesborch. All three descriptions include the statement about the wearing of feathers. Each one contains also some details not in the other two, but the general resemblance in contents indicates the same source. Most of the facts mentioned are from the Mundus Novus, but the wearing of feathers is found only in the Lettera, near the end of the first voyage, where the islanders called Iti are described.

The type appears to be the same as Johann Froschauer's no. 3, German text used from 1495 to 1520, with peculiar D resembling a B, and also a cursive D like capital S reversed, both found in the first line of the broadside. See Proctor, Part 1, p. 126, and Part 2, p. 73, with measurement of 90 mm. to twenty lines; British Museum Catalogue of xvth Century Books, Part 2, p. 394, with measurement of 92 mm., and reproduction as Froschauer 92 on Plate xxxvii; and Veröff. d. Gesell. f. Typenkunde, Taf. 61, with measurement of 92 mm., reproduction from a Latin book of (1499), Proctor 1842, and a complete alphabet.

A facsimile reproduction in reduced size accompanies Dr. Georg Leidinger's article, Die älteste bekannte Abbildung südamerikanischer Indianer, pp. 179-181 of the Gutenberg Festschrift volume of 1925; and also Rudolf Schuller's revised article on "The oldest known illustration of South American Indians," in Indian Notes, vol. VII, pp. 484-497, published by the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, New York, October 1930.

Harris 20. Another impression of the same wood engraving, with the description below in four long lines but from a different setting of the same type. A comparison of photographs shows that both engravings are impressions from the same block, and the light coloring in reddish brown, yellow and green appear to be by the same hand in both. The measurement of this impression is the same approximately as that of the other, being 338 mm. across at the top, 336 mm. near the middle, and 334 mm. at the bottom. From top to bottom it is 222 mm., and with the four lines of text 240 mm. Portions of a watermark can be seen in the center of the sheet, but not clearly enough to determine its shape or figure.

The printed text shows several variations in spelling and punctuation which suggest the probability of its being a second or later edition. They are as follows:—(1) christenlichen instead of cristenlichen; (2) naket instead of nackent; (3) vid instead of vil; (4) Vnnd instead of Vnd; (5) no period between schwester and oder; (6) haben sy kain instead of haben sy nit; (7) einander instead of ainander; (8) a period between werden and vnd; and (9) füntzig iar instead of fünfftzig iar.

This copy of the print came into the possession of Henry Stevens of London in December 1850, and was priced by him at £25. Not selling it at that price it was included in Mr. Stevens's auction sale at Puttick and Simpson's in May 1854, as lot no. 27, and was bought in by the owner at £3. 13. 6. It appeared again in Stevens's auction sale at Puttick and Simpson's in March 1861, as lot no. 57, when it was bought by C. J. Stewart the theological bookseller for £15. 15. 0., probably for Mr. Libri. In the following year it was no. 17 in the Catalogue of the Reserved and Most Valuable Portion of the Libri Collection, sold by Messrs. Sotheby & Wilkinson, July 25, 1862, and was bought by Sir Thomas Phillipps for £30. 10. 0. At the Phillipps sale by Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, June 24, 1919, it was for the second time no. 57 of the Catalogue, and was bought by Quaritch for £470. Early in 1920 Quaritch sold it to the Pierpont Morgan Library, and from that Library it was bought shortly after for the Spencer Collection in the New York Public Library. In May 1920 a special volume in oblong folio size was prepared to hold the engraving, and a description with a facsimile was printed to accompany it. Six extra copies were also printed for use only in the library. This description and facsimile were reprinted in the New York Public Library Bulletin for September 1922, vol. 26, pp. 755-760, and also issued as a separate pamphlet.

A facsimile of the engraving nearly full size without the four lines of German text was cut on wood for Mr. Stevens in December 1850, and one of five proofs colored by hand like the original was sent to Mr. James Lenox on January 26, 1851. The same facsimile uncolored was published in Stevens's American Bibliographer, vol. 1, no. 1, January 1854, and was also inserted in Stevens's auction sale catalogue of May 1854. A facsimile nearly full size and with the German text below appeared in the New York Public Library Bulletin for September 1922. Smaller facsimiles are in Justin Winsor's Narrative and Critical History of America, vol. 2, 1886, p. 19; and in Rudolph Schuller's three articles in English on "The Oldest known Illustration of South American Indians," printed in the United States Catholic Historical Society's Historical Records and Studies, vol. xi, pp. 89-97, New York 1917; in the Journal de la Société des Américanistes de Paris, n. s. tome xvi, pp. 111-118, Paris 1924; and in Indian Notes, vol. vii, pp. 484-497, published by the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, New York, October 1930. Schuller's article was rewritten in German as "Die älteste bekannte Abbildung südamerikanischer Indianer," and with the facsimile was printed in Dr. A. Petermanns Mitteilungen, 71. Jahrgang, pp. 21-24, Gotha 1925.

JCB. Catalogue p. 48, Proctor's Doesborgh 4. First issue of Doesborch's plagiarism of Sprenger's narrative under Vespucci's name, before the three extra lines were added to the title. Number of lines:—eleven full pages with 32, one each with 28, 30 and 23, nine with text and engravings, and one with engraving only. Watermarks:—(1) a bull's head with a T cross on sheet A, variant of Briquet 4. 15176; (2) the letter p on sheet B, variant of Briquet 3. 8628; and (3) a different letter p on sheet C, variant of Briquet 3. 8632. Only one copy of this issue recorded.

The book is in two parts: first, the account of the natives of Africa and India, pp. 2-8; and second, the account of the voyage, pp. 9-22. There are ten engravings: (1) the natives of "Gennea" or Guinea in western equatorial Africa on the title-page; (2) the same engraving repeated on page 2; (3) the natives of "Allago" in southeastern Africa on page 3; (4) the natives of "Arabia" on the eastern coast of Africa on page 4; (5) the natives of "Major India" or southwestern India and Calicut on page 5; (6) a fig tree on page 6; (7) two natives of "Gutschin" or Cochin in south-western India fighting on page 7; (8) the king of "Gutschin" or Cochin carried on a palanquin on page 8; (9) the pictorial triangle on page 23, which had been used in the Dutch translation of the third voyage; and (10) the printer's device on page 24.

The real author of this work was Balthasar Sprenger or Springer, supercargo on the Leonhard. The latter was one of the three German ships fitted out by the merchants of Augsburg and Nuremberg, under a special privilege granted by King Emanuel, to accompany to India the Portuguese expedition commanded by Francisco de Almeida. The Germans sailed from Antwerp on January 15, 1505, and from Lisbon with the Portuguese fleet on March 23; they reached Quiloa on the east coast of Africa on July 23, and Cochin in south-western India on October 30. Returning from India late in the following year with the second home-bound squadron, the Leonhard arrived at Lisbon on November 15, 1506, six months after the first ships sent home by Almeida. After Sprenger returned to Germany he prepared the three following works: (1) an account of the voyage in Latin, 1507 or 1508; (2) a series of large engravings of the natives of Africa and India as seen by him on the voyage, with descriptive text in German, the engravings by Hans Burgkmair, Augsburg 1508; and (3) an account of the voyage in German, entitled Die Merfart, with copies of some of the engravings, Cologne, type of Hermann Bungart, 1509. The first of these works was a "Relatio . . . de maxima sua marina peregrinatione . . . versus polum Antarticum in Indiam et ejus insulas," which was circulated in manuscript, and printed perhaps for the first time in the Voyage Littéraire de deux Religieux Benedictins de la Congregation de S. Maur, (by Edmond Martène and D. Durand), vol. 2, Paris 1724, pp. 361-378.

The Dutch plagiarism was made by reproducing in small size seven of Sprenger's pictures of African and Indian natives, with his descriptive text, and by translating large portions of Sprenger's Latin relation of the voyage. The original preamble, "I Balthasar Springer," etc., was suppressed, as well as all other references which would point to the author, and there was substituted a Dutch translation of the introductory words of Vespucci's Mundus Novus, which in English would read: "My friend Laurentius, I Albericus already have written to you fully of my voyages to the new lands in general; now I am writing to you the true account thereof from point to point." To strengthen the deception the publisher then added at the end an abridged Dutch translation of Vespucci's short chapter on cosmography in the Mundus Novus and the accompanying pictorial engraving of the triangle, showing two South American Indians in one compartment standing at right angles with three Europeans in another compartment.

A facsimile of the second issue described below was published under the following title:—The Voyage from Lisbon to India 1505-6, being an account and journal by Albericus Vespuccius, translated from the contemporary Flemish, and edited with prologue and notes, by C. H. Coote, Department of Printed Books (Geographical Section) British Museum. London: B. F. Stevens. 1894. 8vo, pp. xxvii, 56. Edition 250 copies, of which six are on parchment. In his prologue the editor claims the work to be a "hitherto unidentified letter from Vespucci to Lorenzo di Pier Francisco de Medici," and as "entirely unknown to our lynx-eyed bibliographers of the literature relating to Vespucci." This publication was soon followed by:—Americus Vespuccius. A Critical and Documentary Review of Two recent English Books concerning that Navigator. By Henry Harrisse. London: B. F. Stevens. 1895. 8vo, pp. 72, (12). With colored frontispiece of the Sprenger coat of arms. Edition 250 copies. The first work reviewed by Harrisse was Clement R. Markham's "The Letters of Amerigo Vespucci," published by the Hakluyt Society in 1894; and the second was Mr. Coote's book. In his review Mr. Harrisse brought together various documents relating to the Portuguese expedition to India in 1505-06, proving that Balthasar Sprenger, and not Vespucci, was the author of the Reyse van Lissebone. Two other important works relating to the subject are the following:—(1) Balthasar Springers Indienfahrt 1505/06. Wissenschaftliche Würdigung der Reiseberichte Springers zur Einführung in den Neudruck seiner "Meerfahrt" vom Jahre 1509, von Franz Schulze. Strassburg: J. H. Ed. Second issue of Doesborch's plagiarism of Sprenger's narrative under Vespucci's name, with the first engraving moved to make room for the addition of three lines to the title. See the note to the preceding title.

ROSTOCK UNIVBIBL. 99365

Ruge 63, Kronenberg Facsimile. The leaf contains 84 lines of print on the recto, including the title heading and colophon, and is divided into six paragraphs, with headings De nouo mundo, De Genea, De Allago, De Arabia, Maior India, and India seu regnum Gutsch, the text of Maior India being misplaced at the end after Gutsch. On the left hand margin are six woodcuts in single line frames, arranged one below the other, illustrating the natives of South America, Guinea, Southeastern and Eastern Africa, Greater India and Cochín; and in the lower right hand corner is a larger woodcut of the King of Cochín on a palanquin carried by his attendants. Six of the woodcuts are the same as in the Reyse van Lissebone of 1508, and all seven are repeated in the book Of the newe landes, by the same printer, described under the following title. On the verso of the leaf is a large woodcut illustrating the ninth commandment which has no relation to the subjects on the recto. A few letters have been torn away at the end of the first two lines, which are supplied here in brackets.

The first paragraph contains the extracts from Vespucci describing the natives of "Armenica" or South America. The accompanying woodcut shows two of the Indians adorned with feathers, and parts of a human body hanging over a fire, the illustration apparently copied from the large woodcut of the Augsburg German broadside. The five other paragraphs relating to the natives of Africa and India are from Balthasar Sprenger's narrative, and are similar to the first part of the Reyse van Lissebone of 1508.

Translation of the first paragraph:—"Of the new world. Picture of the people in Armenica, the island of wonderful but not fully known size, discovered in two voyages on the western ocean from 1496 to 1499, performed by the great and excellent man Albericus Vesputius at the order and command of the illustrious king of Lusitania, the country which is now called Portugal, about fifteen degrees . . . more towards the ocean than the meridian of the Fortunate Islands and for the greater part under the torrid zone. The men are said to be barbarians, given over to bestial pleasures, going about entirely naked, except that the women as well as the men have feathers bound to their heads, necks, arms, privy parts and feet, which they say is done for adornment. It is the custom not to mark out or divide their fields by boundaries; but all things are held in common. In the same manner the men use all of the women for their pleasure, even their mothers, sisters, daughters and relations. They fight each other even to killing, not being averse to eating the smoked bodies of the slain (for they are hung in the smoke). They have no king; they exceed the usual age of men by living one hundred and fifty years."

Most of these customs of the people are found also in the Augsburg German broadside, but the following particulars are not mentioned there:—(1) the name of the country Armenica; (2) the dates of the two voyages 1496 to 1499; (3) the name of Albericus Vesputius; (4) the location in the torrid zone; (5) the people barbarians, given over to bestial pleasures; and (6) their fields not divided by boundaries. See M. E. Kronenberg's facsimile reproduction entitled De Novo Mondo, The Hague 1927, described below, pp. 1-9, for a comparison of the contents of the three texts in German, Latin and English.

The type of the first five paragraphs is Doesborch's No. 1, the size in which most of his books were printed. The type of the sixth paragraph is one size smaller, and should be called No. 2. This size is not mentioned in Proctor's monograph on Doesborch, where the type called No. 2 is two sizes smaller than No. 1, and should be called No. 3. See his monograph, page 9.

The only known copy of this printed leaf was formerly in the possession of Magister Egbert van Haerlem, Dutch professor at Rostock University from about 1509 to 1539, and was preserved by being inserted in the folio Opera omnia Diui Eusebii Hieronymi Stridonensis, vols. 5-6, Basel 1516. It was described by Dr. Emil Sarnow in his introduction to the facsimile of the Rostock edition of the Mundus Novus, Strassburg 1903, page 10; by Walther Ruge in his final article on early cartographical material in German libraries in the 1916 Beiheft of the Göttinger Nachrichten, title no. 63 on pages 91-92; by Franz Hümmerich in his Quellen und Untersuchungen zur Fahrt der ersten Deutschen nach dem portugiesischen Indien 1505-6, München 1918, pages 31-35, where it is reprinted in full; and finally by M. E. Kronenberg in her book cited above.

Harrisse 116, Proctor's Doesborgh 22. The English translation is made up of five parts, with thirty-two engravings. The picture on the title page and the four small cuts on the reverse are repetitions of those in the book. The first part is the extract from Vespucci on the natives of "Armenica" or South America, a little enlarged from the preceding Latin broadside, and with the same engraving showing two Indians adorned with feathers (one a man with a spear, the other a seated woman with two children), and parts of a human body hanging over a fire, pp. (3-4). The second part is Sprenger's account of the natives of Africa and India, from the Reyse van Lissebone of 1508 and the Latin broadside, with an additional paragraph on the trees of India, pp. (5-14, 16-17). It is illustrated by eight engravings of the people of Guinea, Allago, Arabia, Major India, Cochin, of a fig tree, and of the king of Cochin on a palanquin. Seven of these engravings had been used formerly in the Reyse van Lissebone, and six in the Latin broadside. The third part is an abridgment of Vespucci's paragraph on cosmography in the Mundus Novus, translated from the Reyse van Lissebone, with the pictorial engraving of the triangle which was used first in the Dutch Vespucci of 1506-07, and then in the Reyse van Lissebone, p. (15). It shows two naked South American Indians in one compartment standing at right angles to three clothed Europeans in the other compartment. The fourth part is a translation of the treatise De decem nationibus christianorum, usually appended to the Itinerary of Johannes de Hesse, as in the editions of Deventer 1504 and 1505 (Nijhoff-Kronenberg, Ned. Bib. 1217 and 1218), with five engravings, pp. (18-27). The fifth part is a translation of the book on Prester John's Lands, also appended to the Deventer editions of Johannes de Hesse, with ten engravings, pp. (29-47), and of which an edition in Dutch, with the same engravings, was published by Doesborch about 1506. Under the colophon on the forty-seventh page is a cut of the royal arms of England with crown above, and on the final page the printer's device with the Greek motto, in its broken state.

The account of the South American Indians is similar to that in the preceding German and Latin single sheet editions, but it contains more details and omits the name of Vespucci:—"Here aforetymes in the yere of our Lorde god. m.cccc.c.xcvi. (and) so be, we with shypes of Lusseboene sayled oute of Portyngale through the commaundement of the Kynge Emanuel. So haue we had our vyage, For by fortune ylandes ouer the great sea with great charge and daunger so haue we at the laste founde oon lordshyp where we sayled well .ix.c. mylee by the cooste of Selandes there we at ye laste went a lande but that lande is not now known for there haue no masters wryten therof nor it knowethe and it is named Armenica, there we sawe many wonders of beestes and fowles yt we haue never seen before, the people of this lande haue no kynge nor lorde nor theyr god But all thinges is comune, this people goeth all naked But the men and women haue on theyr heed necke, Armes, Knees, and fete all with feders bounden for there bewtynes (and) fayrenes. These folke lyuen lyke bestes without any resonableness and the wymen be also as comon. And the men hath conuersacyon with the wymen, who that they ben or who they fyrst mete, is she his syster, his moder, his daughter, or any other kynred. And the wymen be very hoothe and dysposed to lecherdnes. And they ete also on a nother The man etethe his wyfe his chylderne, as we also haue seen. and they hange also the bodyes or persons fleeshe in the smoke, as men do with vs swynes fleshe. And that lande is ryght full of folke, for they lyue comonly .iiij. c. yere (and) more as with sykenesse they dye nat, they take much fyssh for they can goen vnder the water and feche so the fysshes out of the water. (And) they were also on vpon a nother, for the olde men brynge the yonge men therto, that they gather a great company therto of towe partyes, and come the on ayene the other to the felde or bateyll, (and) slee on the other with great hepes. And howe holdeth the fylde, they take the other prysoners. And they brynge them to deth and ete them, and as the deed is eten then sley they the rest. And they been than eten also, or otherwyse lyue they longer tymes (and) many yeres more than other people for they haue costely spyces (and) rotes, where they them selfe recouer with, and hele them as they be seke."

Several details given here are not included in the German broadside, viz:—(1) the date of the voyage 1496; (2) the name of King Emanuel; (3) they sailed 900 miles; (4) the name of the country Armenica; (5) the wonderful animals and birds; (6) they have no king, no lord, no god; (7) they live like beasts; (8) the women very lecherous; (9) they live 300 years; (10) they swim and take fish under the water; and (11) they cure sickness with herbs and roots.

The type is Doesborch's black letter No. 1, in which most of his books were printed. The title-page was reproduced in facsimile on Plate x of Proctor's monograph, and the two pages relating to America on Plate xi. The book was reprinted without the illustrations in Edward Arber's The First Three English Books on America, Birmingham 1885, pp. xxvii—xxxvi.

Several attempts have been made to fix a date for this book. The earliest was in William Herbert's enlarged edition of Ames's Typographical Antiquities, vol. 3, 1790, page 1533, where the editor states that it "has no date; but by mentioning Emanuel king of Portugal, and exclaiming against Luther, it might be about 1521, or 1522, when King Emanuel died, and Luther was burnt in effigy." Notwithstanding the fact that there is no mention whatever of Luther in the book nor any allusion to the Protestant reformation, this statement by Herbert was generally accepted for nearly a century, being repeated in the Grenville Catalogue of 1842, while the dates 1521 or 1522 were current as late as 1884, the date of publication of the British Museum Catalogue of English Books. In 1885 Edward Arber remarked in his reprint, "Clearly, the latest date that can be assigned to this tract is 1511. Had it been written later, the information contained in it would not have been so crude. . . . There is not a word about Luther in the tract; and it is typographically evident from the above, that the tract can hardly be later than 1511." Mr. Arber's record of English intercourse with the Levant, in his preface, was taken from Hakluyt, and began with 1511. In 1894 Robert Proctor's monograph on Doesborch was published, in which sixteen undated books were given approximate dates by comparing the condition of impressions from the same woodcuts that appeared also in the thirteen dated books described. Tested in this way by the printer's device with the Greek motto, the New Lands was associated with a group of books dated 1517, 1518 and 1520, in which the line frame of the motto was partly broken, as shown in Proctor's Plate iv, and in this condition called device 3B. In its unbroken condition (device 3A) it appeared first in the Reyse van Lissebone of December 1508, as in Proctor's Plate iii, and again in one of the undated books, the Longer Accidence, dated approximately [c. 1509?]. No dated books with this device had been found between 1508 and 1517. The book of 1520, the Dieren Palleyes, contained four small woodcuts used formerly in Doesborch's edition in Dutch of Prester John's Lands of about 1506, and two kinds of border pieces, all of which appeared also in the New Lands. On comparing them Proctor says (page 14), "The cuts common to the New Lands and to the Dieren Palleyes seem to prove the former to be the later, though Border 20 appears to tell the other way," and for that reason he dated the New Lands [c. 1520?]. Referring again to Border 20 on pp. 90-91, he says that in the Dieren Palleyes it "is broken, and near the end quite worn out," while the example used in the New Lands, "which is not broken, must, unless the book be wrongly placed" after Dieren Palleyes, "be a duplicate block." Proctor's date of [1520?] was adopted by the British Museum Catalogue (Supplement) in 1902, and by the Short-Title Catalogue of English

Books in 1926. The Nederlandsche Bibliographie, 1501-1540, by Nijhoff and Kronenberg, published in 1923, describes several Doesborch books unknown to Proctor, including a dated book of 1504, and also a dated book of 1516 containing the broken device 3B. A careful consideration of all these theories and of the apparent close relationship of this book and of the preceding Latin broadside to the other Doesborch publications of 1506-08 here described, has led to the adoption of the approximate dates [1510-15] for the book and [1509-10] for the broadside.

PRAGUE STRAHOV MONAST. 99367

Translation:—"On the New Lands and the New World, concerning which hitherto we have had no knowledge nor have heard anything. In these our times when the Most Illustrious King Ferdinand, king of Spain, Catalonia and Portugal, etc., is reigning together with his wife Isabella ... [4th page:] Albericus Vespucius to Lorenzo Petro de Medici Greetings. In past days I have already written rather extensively concerning my return from the new lands ... [16th page ends:] Almighty God, who art the First and Only Cause of all things, we thank Thee, rejoicing in spirit over this so great extension of Christendom."

This small book in the Czech language contains an abridgment of the Mundus Novus. There are 22 lines to a full page. The Vespucci extracts occupy the fourth to the thirteenth pages, and appear to be taken from one of the Latin editions like those of Venice, Augsburg or Rome, which leave out the "Francisci" part of Lorenzo de Medici's name and have the spelling "Beseghice" for the Moorish name of Cape Verde. According to this version the expedition was fitted out by King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella of Spain, and the narrative of the voyage was written by Albericus Vespucius, the Marshal of the Spanish king. It relates how they left Spain with three ships on May 14, 1501, sailed steadily to the south for 16 months [days], then westwards to Cape Verde or "Beseghyce," and across the ocean for 67 days to the new lands, where they arrived on August 7, 1502 [1501]. The manners and customs of the people are described in full, including how they lived to the age of 150 years. The supplementary part then goes on to relate that when the ships returned to Spain there was great rejoicing. The king sent a large store of woollen cloth and linen on many ships to these countries so that the naked people might clothe themselves. He next obtained permission from the Pope to subjugate and add to his dominions all the newly discovered lands. At this time three priests were sent over to learn the language, and they lived amongst these people five years for that purpose, and preached to them and taught them, so that great multitudes were baptized. Then galley after galley sailed frequently to these new lands, and many priests went over.

And so already merchants, craftsmen and other people travel frequently to this new world. And of these new lands or islands there are five, namely, God's Island (San Salvador), Ferdinand Island (Fernandina), Isabella Island, Spanish Island, and Hispaniola Island.

The above named islands were in fact discovered by Columbus in his first voyage in 1492, but the credit of the discovery is here given to Vespucci, while Columbus is not mentioned. The editor of the facsimile, Father Straka, says in his preface that there is no reason to doubt that Columbus was the first discoverer of America, and that other navigators sailed to the west before Vespucci. However, he accepts the statement that this third voyage was made at the command of King Ferdinand of Spain, as stated in the book, but adds that some authorities say that it was undertaken by order of King Emanuel of Portugal, and that its starting point was Lisbon, and its destination Brazil.

The printer of the book, Nicolaus Bakalar, was a Slovak born in Hungary, who came to Bohemia and settled at Pilsen in 1487 or 1488. His full name, as once signed by himself in 1510, was Mikulas Stetina, Bakalar (bachelor) of honorable studies at Cracow University. The earliest known imprint from his press was a calendar for 1489, of which no copy has been preserved. His type was a large text German, twenty lines measuring 106 mm., similar to that in Proctor's fig. 52 in Part 2, page 224, belonging to a group described on page 200. A facsimile of this type, consisting of two pages from a little book printed by Bakalar in 1498 with the title Traktat o zemi svate, or "Treatise on the Holy Land," is reproduced on pp. 69-70 of Tobolka's History of Czecho-Slovak Printing. The Traktat was an extract from Breidenbach's Travels, and contains at the beginning the same woodcut of a ship that was used later in the Vespucci. From the year 1506 Bakalar was associated with Hieronymus Hölzel of Nuremberg in the printing of some of his books. The former continued to print at Pilsen until 1513, and died there some time before 1520.

The only known copy of the Czech Vespucci is described as bound in a volume with two other pamphlets of the same small size also printed by Bakalar, which belonged at one time to Josef Bartsch, father confessor of the Ursuline Nunnery in Prague, and later to Bohumir Dlabac, librarian of the Strahov Monastery. It was mentioned by Josef Dobrovsky in the second edition of his Geschichte der böhmischen Sprache und Literatur, Prague 1818, p. 312; and by Vaclav Hanka in the first of his two articles on "České prvotisky" or early Czech printing, in Casopis Českého Museum, vol. 26, part 3, Prague 1852, p. 121. See also Zdenek V. Tobolka, Dejiny Československého Knihťisku (History of Czecho-Slovak Printing), Prague 1930, pp. 66-71, for an account of Mikulas Bakalar and his work; and especially the facsimile reprint, described below, Spis o novych zemich, Prague 1926. The latter was edited with translations in modern Czech, English and Spanish, and a bibliographical note by Cyril Straka, librarian of the Strahov Monastery.

Palau y Dulcet in "Manual del librero hispano-americano," vol. 5, p. 207, notes an edition without imprint or date, but with the same collation.

The attribution of the work to Vidaurre on the part of the German translator was incorrect. Title from a photostat in NYP. of the HEH. copy.

The HEH. copy first appeared at the Hurst sale where it was bought by Mr. H. F. De Puy, at whose sale it was sold to HEH. Another copy, from the library of Charles Williamson, is privately owned in western New York.

"300 copies reprinted for George P. Humphrey, Rochester, N. Y. 1892." AAS., C., H., NYP.

Three editions were reprinted in 1804, with variations, under the title "Description of the Genesee Country," two of which have "By Robert Munro" on the title page. See our no. 51355, vol. 12. The "Description" is reprinted in E. B. O'Callaghan's "Documentary History of . . . New York," vol. 2, 1850, pp. 679-691. Since considerable investigation has failed to reveal the identity of Munro, it seems probable that the name was used as a pseudonym, perhaps by Charles Williamson, who is known to be the author of a collection of letters with title, "Description of the Genesee Country," Albany, 1798, and who was interested in the sale of land in the region described. One of his account books shows that Williamson paid for the printing of a pamphlet of this character in 1804 and his personal copy of this pamphlet still exists.

The Philadelphia, 1776, edition was previously entered as our no. 25595, vol 7, and again as 34580 vol. 9. A photostatic reproduction from the c. copy is in NYP. It is described in De Puy's "Bibliography of the English Colonial Treaties with the ... Indians," 1917, no. 49, and he states that he has not seen the undated edition. He also notes the "Appendix [i.e. appendices i-iv] of the 'Case' [of William Trent and other traders, probably printed in London about 1770] is the same as the 'View of the Title to Indiana' except that in the latter the legal opinions of Dagge and others have been added." Information as to the Williamsburg edition from Heartman's "Americana Printed and in Manuscript," 1932, no. 212, the item being still in his possession in March, 1935.

It should be noted that the tract of land referred to was in the northwestern part of what is now the state of West Virginia, and has no connection with the present state of Indiana. Samuel Wharton and Benjamin Franklin were among those interested in promoting the development of "Indiana," and the former probably prepared this pamphlet.

Since the report on the Huron missions was seized by the Iroquois, this Relation contains only the Algonquin narrative by Vimont, and a "Declaration de Messieurs les Directeurs, & Associez en la Compagnie de la Nouvelle France," pp. (3).

NYP. and WLC. have two variant issues.

NYP. 99760

The Latin address to the reader on the second leaf is signed: P. Vincentius.

There are three variants of the first edition, with the title page dated 1637, and accounted for by changes made while the type was kept standing. The Short-Title Catalogue locates one of these variants at BM.

In this, the first issue, pp. 20-21, are misnumbered 12-13, and line four of p. 23 is wrongly punctuated to read: "enmity and warre; with the natives from".

+ [Same imprint, date and collation.]

HEH. 99761

The second variant of the first edition, with the same title and from the same sheets. The error in punctuation on p. 23 is repeated, but pp. 20 and 21 are correctly numbered.

+ [Same imprint, date and collation.]

JCB. 99762

The third variant of the first edition, with the same title and from the same sheets. Pp. 20-21 are so numbered, and line 4 of p. 23 reads correctly: "enmity and warre with the natives. From".

B., HEH., NYP. 99763

The later issues of the first edition have new title pages dated 1638, but are from the same sheets, gathered apparently indiscriminately from the earlier and later printings of 1637.

In the above copies the errors on pp. 20, 21, and 23, appear as in the first issue. "Doubtless there were many copies of the First Issue unsold and these were issued in 1638 without substituting the reprinted last leaf, and without change except in title. Apparently the mistakes in pagination and construction were discovered in 1637, and the few copies that were sold during the remainder of that year contained the cancel leaf; but the publisher did not take the trouble to substitute the final leaf in 1638."—Catalogue of the Terry sale at the American Art Association Galleries, pt. 2, Nov. 7-8, 1934, lot no. 335, which lists a copy of the third issue, and reproduces a reduced facsimile of that title page.

+ [Same imprint, date and collation.]

HEH., P. 99764

In these copies pp. 20-21 are misnumbered 12-13, but line 4 of p. 23 has the correct punctuation, "enmity and warre with the natives. From".

+ [Same imprint, date and collation.]

B., JCB., NEWBERRY. 99765

In these copies pp. 20-21 are so numbered, and line 4 of p. 23 reads correctly.
